MERCER UNIVERSITY BEGINS CELEBRATION

This Week Marked by Oratorical Contests and Graduation Exercises

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
MERCER UNIVERSITY, Macon, Ga., June 5.—With the sophomore-freshman declamation contest tonight, leaving as a prelude, the usual commencement program of Mercer university begins with the commencement exercises on Sunday. The entire program will extend through Wednesday, ending with the graduation exercises on that day. The sophomore speakers in the declamation contest are R. L. James, Macon; J. A. Davis, Porton; Thomas Morgan, Hound; and those of the freshman class are F. L. Courson, Bailey; R. S. Wood, Sunny Side, and R. C. Palmer, Macon. On Monday the oratorical contest will be held at 10:30 o'clock, and the contestants for this are: H. N. O'Leary, T. M. Giffin, Jr., Seneca; R. L. Hunt, Adairville, and H. S. Wood, Sunny Side. On the same day at 5 p. m. at Macolus terrace on the campus, will be held the senior class exercises, and at 8 p. m. the champion debate between the two literary societies will be held. The question for debate this year is "Resolved, That a national system of industrial insurance should be made compulsory for corporations." On Tuesday, the literary association will give a banquet at the hotel, and the program for that day will be the annual faculty reception at 8 p. m.

J. B. NORMAN, who will deliver address for law class at Mercer's commencement exercises.

REV. LEWIS J. O'HERN
TO PREACH HERE SUNDAY

Will Fill Pulpit Sunday Morning
at Church of the Immaculate Conception

Rev. Dr. Lewis J. O'Hern, doctor of Catholic university, Washington, D. C., will preach Sunday morning at the church of the Immaculate Conception at the ordination solemnities here. Mr. O'Hern was recently ordained a priest.

Rev. Father O'Hern represents the Catholic Archbishops of the United States in the appointment of the Catholic army and navy chaplains and comes of a family that has given four of its sons to the priesthood and a fifth to the nation as a military officer, namely, Major Edward P. O'Hern, ordnance department, U. S. Army.

Following his ordination twelve years ago, Father O'Hern was assigned to the parish mission at Winchester, Tenn., and for seven years he ministered to the people in the south. He was then sent to Rome to be perfectly equipped to teach dogmatic theology and while there was the recipient of many honors. After several years' study he received the degree of doctor of divinity and doctor of canon law, and returned to America to teach dogma to the priest students at St. Paul's college, Catholic university, Washington.

He has been in demand as orator for special occasions throughout America. Catholic chaplains of the army and navy have secured the approval of Secretary of War George D. Goetz for his mission in San Francisco beginning July 20. As head of these chaplains, Father O'Hern will leave soon to complete arrangements for opening the congress.

REV. DR. LEWIS J. O'HERN
Will Preach at the Immaculate Conception
Catholic church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

Messenger Boy Hurt
Ralph Stallings, a messenger boy for the postoffice, was knocked down Saturday afternoon by automobile No. 1619, driven by Pratt and Decatur streets. The lad was carried to the hospital.

Don't Forget
"Some Foxy Trot, Mammie, What? Come 'Round You, You, You, GETS-IT!"

that removes any and every corn or callus with out pain, without thick blisters, no lameness, no swelling, no itching, no ointments. Applied in 2 seconds—2 drops, the work is done. To your heart, the crucifixion of having to wear shoes over excruciating corns is now a thing of the past. "GETS-IT" is the new, sure, simple, painless way to get rid of both corns and calluses. It gets "GETS-IT." Avoid imitations. "GETS-IT" is sold everywhere. 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago—14271.

AD MEN TO GIVE COTTON
BOLLS FOR SOUVENIRS

Johnson Vovely Co., of Newnan, Will Furnish Them Free of Charge

When the Atlanta Ad Men's delegation goes to Chicago, June 18, for the big advertisers' convention it will repeat the stunt that made Atlanta famous at Toronto last summer. That was the distribution among the visiting delegates of thousands of ripe, open cotton bolls which were an interesting curiosity to the majority of the visitors to the Canadian city.

In the face of conditions this year the Ad Men were at a loss to know what they were going to do with regard to souvenirs, but that situation has been remedied. The Ezra Johnson Vovely company of Newnan, Ga., has voluntarily contributed to the delegates 3,000 specially prepared ripe cotton bolls, each put up in a box upon which appear interesting southern scenes. This company, making typical southern novelties of leather and other sorts, is the only one of its kind in the south, and the Ad Men feel especially good over the fact that it has come to the rescue in this emergency. These cotton bolls prepared and put up as they are usually sell for 10 cents each, and the gift is considered quite a valuable one.

Until this offer came the Ad Men were somewhat at a loss as to just what they would do to advertise Atlanta and Georgia during the convention at the Chicago convention. This solves the problem and every delegate to the convention will be presented with something which will forcibly remind him of this city and state. The Atlanta delegation will leave the city June 19, reaching Chicago Sunday, June 20, and will spend the week in that city.

MR. AND MRS. STEVENS
HAVE RETURNED HOME

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Stevens have returned from their wedding trip to the mountains of Tennessee. Mrs. Stevens is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Cowell, of this city, and Mr. Stevens is a well-known young man.

Both the members of the regiment will do their own cooking and are expected to secure much practical experience.

THE FIFTH REGIMENT WILL GO ON
Long Hike Instead of Usual Encampment

A practice march to last six days is being planned in stead of the usual encampment by the Fifth Regiment of Georgia, according to an announcement made Saturday by Colonel Orville M. Hall, commander of the Atlanta regiment.

Members of the regiment were recently disappointed by the announcement of Adjutant General J. Van Holt that there would be no regular encampment this year. But at a meeting of the officers of the regiment last Wednesday night it was decided that the Fifth on its own responsibility could take the practice march.

The time selected for the practice march is the same at which the regiment expected to go into an encampment July 10, and the regiment will be away five nights and six days.

This is said to be the first time that a southern regiment of the national guard has made such a lengthy practice march, and the officers are entering into the plans with much real enthusiasm.

The regiment will take along a number of four-mule transport wagons, an ambulance, litter, a mounted scout detachment, and the appearance and materials for regular field service.

The war department will be asked to detail one or more regular army officers as instructors during the march.

Both the members of the regiment will do their own cooking and are expected to secure much practical experience.

Vel Couldn't Find
Woman He Stole Pie
From 50 Years Ago

QUITMAN, Ga., June 5.—W. B. Gorton, of Barney, returned today from the Confederate reunion at Richmond bitterly disappointed because he could not find the woman he stole a pie from fifty years ago, whom he was with the Confederate army in that city. He says that pie stands out in his life as one of his big events, and he went to Richmond solely to see if he could find this woman or any of her descendants.

He carries a deep scar on his hand as a memento of the lady's resentment over the loss of the pie.

After an all-night march the troops of which Mr. Gorton was one were hurried through Richmond without time for breakfast. This woman had pies displayed on a window ledge and Mr. Gorton grabbed one. The woman made a swipe at him with a big knife and cut his hand, but he hid on the pie. The next soldier who tried to grab a pie got his fingers almost cut off. Mr. Gorton says that he saved his life.

The veterans who attended the reunion from this county were Mr. Gorton, J. W. Haddock, A. Belcher, Tobias Robertson.

Members of the regiment were recently disappointed by the announcement of Adjutant General J. Van Holt that there would be no regular encampment this year. But at a meeting of the officers of the regiment last Wednesday night it was decided that the Fifth on its own responsibility could take the practice march.

The time selected for the practice march is the same at which the regiment expected to go into an encampment July 10, and the regiment will be away five nights and six days.

This is said to be the first time that a southern regiment of the national guard has made such a lengthy practice march, and the officers are entering into the plans with much real enthusiasm.

The regiment will take along a number of four-mule transport wagons, an ambulance, litter, a mounted scout detachment, and the appearance and materials for regular field service.

The war department will be asked to detail one or more regular army officers as instructors during the march.

Both the members of the regiment will do their own cooking and are expected to secure much practical experience.

DAVIS HOPES TO GET ISLAND FOR PRESERVE

State Game Commissioner Charles L. Davis is more encouraged than ever in his hope that the federal government will shortly turn over to the state Blackbeard island on the Georgia coast, for a wild bird refuge and game preserve.

The game commissioner Saturday received a copy of an executive order recently passed by President Wilson which takes Blackbeard island from the jurisdiction of the United States agricultural department, while it was transferred in July, last year, and turns it back over to the United States treasury department.

Commissioner Davis plans to have the legislature of Georgia adopt resolutions requesting the secretary of the treasury to give jurisdiction over Blackbeard island to the state game department.

H. M. ATKINSON'S FATHER DIES AT BOSTON HOME

Mr. Atkinson Leaves for Mass.
City to Attend Funeral
Tuesday

Mr. Harry M. Atkinson, the well known Atlanta capitalist and the third son of the late George Atkinson, received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of his father, Mr. George Atkinson, at his home in Boston, yesterday morning. Mr. Atkinson left last night for Boston to attend the funeral Tuesday in that city.

Mr. George Atkinson was 94 years of age last May and was one of the most prominent citizens of Boston. He was the sixth of his line, his family having settled in Boston in 1835. The first land ever surveyed in the city belonged to the Atkinson family, which came from the county of Lancashire in England, and the record of the survey is still in the family's possession. A part of this land is now Postoffice Square, on which is located the Boston postoffice in the center of the city.

Mr. Atkinson was one of the pioneers in the development of the cotton manufacturing industry in New England. For many years he was president of the famous Massachusetts Mill, which built the large cotton mill at Lindale, Ga., near Rome, at a branch. Some thirty years ago Mr. Atkinson withdrew from active business and has since lived a quiet retired life.

On the occasion of Mr. Harry Atkinson's marriage to Miss May Peters, a daughter of the late Richard Peters, in 1911, Mr. George Atkinson visited Atlanta and was here at other times. He is pleasantly recalled by many Atlanta people. The late Samuel M. Inman of this city was his close personal friend and business associate.

Last October Mr. Atkinson had a stroke of paralysis and from that time on his strength slowly failed him. Or late, however, he seemed to be rallying and the family were hopeful that his improvement would be lasting.

Last Friday a week ago Mr. Harry Atkinson paid him a visit and he recognized him. The news of his death, while not unexpected, came to Mr. Atkinson as a severe shock.

Mr. Atkinson leaves his son, one daughter, Mrs. George Conde, of Boston, and one brother, R. S. Atkinson, a prominent Boston architect. Since the death of his wife ten years ago he had made his home with Mrs. Conde and it was there that he died. The late Edward Atkinson, the noted political economist, was his brother.

Invokes God's Reward for Pellagra Cure

June 5.—H. M. Batterwhite writes: "I want to thank you for what you have done for me. You have cured my wife. God bless you in your work. I hope some day to see you; if I never see you I hope to meet you in heaven. God will reward you for your good and noble work."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the successful Baughn.

The symptoms—bands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, red, raw throat and tongue a flaming red, with mucus and chinking, indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope, set Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 202, Harper, Ala., remitting money is refunded in cash when the remedy fails to cure.

CHILLY NEW YORKERS EAT GEORGIA PEACHES

Expected to Improve the Market Conditions

Men in heavy overcoats are eating Georgia peaches on the streets of New York City. This news was received in a telegram Saturday to the Georgia Fruit exchange from its Gotham representative.

While the winterlike weather has furnished an engaging contrast, it has also had a tendency to lower prices received for fifteen carloads of Mayflower peaches shipped east by the exchange through Wednesday.

But with the continuation of pleasant weather it is believed market conditions will improve. Next week will see the passing of the Mayflower and the advent of the Greenboro and Queen of Dixie variety.

The exchange has received word that the May drop of peaches in North Georgia orchards has been heavy, reducing the original estimate on fruit from this section materially.

WARRANT FOR SHERIFF WHO KILLED J. M. TATE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)
CAMILLA, Ga., June 5.—A warrant has been sworn out here for the arrest of Sheriff O. B. Jarman, of Turner county, as a result of the shooting of J. M. Tate in northeast Mitchell last week. Mr. Tate dying of his wounds soon after. When the warrant was placed in the hands of Sheriff Crow he received instructions from Judge J. E. Cox to take a temporary bond for Sheriff Jarman's appearance in court at proper time. The case will probably come up at an adjourned term of superior court at the latter part of the month.

This is the largest 4-cylinder Overland that will be produced this year

The Newest Overland $325 Less Than Last Year

The 1916 Overland is essentially the same as the 1915 Overland—the famous Model 80 that sold for $1075.

But the price is $325 less.

The stream-line body is the same as the $1075 model of last season.

It has the same magnificent finish; that deep, rich tone of dark Brewster green with fine hairline striping of clear ivory-white.

It has the same powerful, economical thirty-five horsepower, four-cylinder motor, but weighs less.

It has high-tension magneto ignition.

It has the same under-slung rear springs. It has the convenient arrangement of electric control buttons on the steering column.

It has the same easy-working clutch which any woman can operate; the same "easy to handle" shifting levers; the same "easy to steer with" wheel; the same positive brakes.

It has 33" x 4" tires which is unusual on a car at this price.

In detail, finish, mechanical fineness, comforts and conveniences, this newest Overland gives you all there was in the $1075 Overland and even more power.

And it costs you but $750—$325 less than last season's large 35 horsepower Overland.

Deliveries are being made now all over the country.

Every Overland dealer already has a waiting list.

GERMANS' TRENCHES REMINO VISITORS OF HOME, SWEET HOME

Every Conceivable Comfort
Possible Is Found There,
From Shaving Mirrors to Four-Poster Beds

NORTHERN FRANCE, May.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—With no little display of pride in the accomplishment of his "boys," the colonel of a Bavarian regiment recently made the rounds of some five kilometers of trenches in this region with an Associated Press correspondent. He was intent on showing two things—that, life at the front is not without its compensations, and second, that German opponents may expect to have a difficult time in driving them out of their comfortable quarters.

It is certain the trenches he exhibited have not their equal on any of the many fighting fronts. Every conceivable "comfort of home" that is available for a trench has been supplied, from shaving mirrors to four-poster beds. These trenches may in winter time have been the mires of mud and water that have been described, but it seems hard to believe when one sees the neat, sloping brick pavements, with drains at regular intervals, and the numerous sanitary arrangements, that have been installed. Almost a mile back of the front line the way was dipped into a shallow trench, or connecting trench—a narrow, winding slit in the ground almost seven feet deep and perhaps three feet wide. The soil in that part of France is of clay, in which the deep excavations had been made with difficulty but which never caves in. The walls were as smooth as planed pine boards.

At intervals along the route little steps had been chiseled in the clay, enabling one to climb up and get a view of the whole landscape, including the French trenches, hundreds of yards away. Little lines of brown-covered trees were the only indications that the whole gigantic field was rutted and cut by trenches that later appeared to be interminable.

After a walk of fifteen or twenty minutes the real trenches, those at the very front, were reached, and one began to see at once that the time of real warfare and the comforts of home combined. Just to make the contrast striking, the crackling noise of rifle fire was broken by the strains of a harmonica.

The fighting trenches differ from the connecting runways in that they are wider, and are reinforced with front with bags of sand or plates of steel through which the soldiers can see the enemy's telescopes without being seen.

Flashed in the runways were little wooden compartments filled with flowers, and some of the flower beds were ingeniously fashioned flower pots filled with spring flowers, together with other decorations, were a feature of almost every yard of the trenches.

To the rear of the trenches, far from the front lines, are the so-called "underground" shelters, the soldiers live when not on duty. The trenches to those in the rear is usually by a connecting trench which runs from the front lines, and almost invariably decorated with flowers.

The interiors are, under the circumstances, surprisingly comfortable. Those of the penitentiaries officers and division leaders are fitted up for the most part with beds, four-poster beds, have clocks and carpets on the floors, and nearly all have a crucifix of little altar at which the reverend Bavarian conduct their devotions.

Ingenuously arranged beds have been installed in each of these shelters so the officer can be summoned instantly in case of attack, without the necessity of going clear down into his little hole. Similar beds, often without beds, but a piece of iron with a nail for a clanger, are placed everywhere in the trenches for waiting or summing the soldiers on duty.

Some shelters in most cases have been given fantastic and familiar names—Villages, towns, and the like. Every trench in addition has the name of a street, usually that of some general or military commander.

The runways leading to officers' shelters in many instances are called "Farmer's roads."

At intervals along the front line of trenches are steel-sheltered openings where machine guns can be set up. The guns are kept, however, in the trenches, built into the clay, so as to protect them from damage by the enemy's shells, brought out when the enemy is attacking.

The German trenches run roughly in a parallel direction to those of the French, but at points where the two lines are close, the distance is only 200 or 300 yards, while at others it is about 400 to 500 yards. At the points where the two lines are close, there has been constructed a narrow trench, just large enough for a man to crawl through on hands and knees, that runs directly toward the French lines.

With one's ear against the clay at the extreme end of this trench one can hear the French moving about and talking. The trench was the purpose of guarding against any attempt by the French to dig toward the Germans and explode a mine. The last effort to dig a counter trench would be detected instantly.

The German trenches run up to a high plateau, which has been made into a steel, bomb and bullet-proof observation point, and is factually called the "Zittel tower." This has been the subject of much observation, but with caution of one value, the sky commands a wide field between the two trenches, as well as the road. Machine guns can be mounted instantly so as to deliver a flank fire in case of sudden attack.

IN A LITTLE CUP OF TREES on the French side is an old chateau now used by them as a staff headquarters. On the French side, behind the German lines, is used by the Germans for the same purpose. Though the artillery forces on both sides know the exact location of the buildings, neither has been destroyed by a sort of mutual consent, because there has been no military or strategic purpose accomplished.

A half mile away stands a huge brick chimney that once was a part of a manufacturing plant. It has been burned through by shell and still stands, and is used by the French for an artillery observation point. On the day of the Associated Press correspondent's journey through the trenches there stood from the tower a German flag—stolen during the night by the French and raised as a sort of mocking challenge to the Germans. The latter promised they would soon get it back.

Included in the "comforts of home" that are a part of the life at the front is the establishment of a little to the

GA. MILITARY ACADEMY CLOSES FIFTEENTH YEAR

Dr. Carl W. Steed Speaker of Evening at Commencement Exercises

The fifteenth year of the Georgia Military academy was brought to a brilliant close on Friday evening a week ago with the commencement exercises in the academic chapel at College Park.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Carl W. Steed, of the chair of English at Mercer university.

The chief speakers of the occasion were the two young men sharing the first honors of the class, Mr. John Cromwell Blocker, Jr., of St. Petersburg, Fla., delivered the salutatory, and Mr. Benjamin Brock, of Carrollton, Ga., the valedictory.

After the speaking, the awards of the year were delivered. The athletic monograms for football, basketball and track were delivered by the head coach, Captain W. B. Sheffer. The warrants of officers in the academy were presented by Major William W. Luck, the commander of cadets, who as a happy close to a successful year of work, Colonel J. C. Woodward, president of the academy, presented certificates and diplomas to the following members of the senior class:

Luther George Beckmann, Savannah, Ga.; Henry Franklin Bell, Americus, Ga.; John Cromwell Blocker, Jr., St. Petersburg, Fla.; Benjamin Brock, Carrollton, Ga.; Robert Eugene Cato, Jr., Americus, Ga.; Thos. Nelson Colley, Grantville, Ga.; John DeLaney Way, Orlando, Fla.; Lela, Ga.; Robert Glenn Dickerson, Jr., Hennesville, Ga.; Frank Marion DeVane, Plant City, Fla.; George Charles Galt, Key West, Fla.; Charles Lester Harvey, St. Petersburg, Fla.; Floy L. Hunt, Sandville, Ga.; Otto Sinclair Jacobson, Atlanta, Ga.; James Allison McNeill, Andalusia, Ala.; William Marion Martin, Ocala, Fla.; George Knox Miller, Jr., Monticello, Fla.; George Capers Miller, Crescent City, Fla.; Paul Hooper Nichols, Atlanta, Ga.; Robert Lee Olds, Beckley, W. Va.; Richard Taylor Nesbit, College Park, Ga.; Bonnar A. Olds, College Park, Ga.; Fred Laurence Pinchason, Charleston, S. C.; Carter Clayton Porter, El Paso, Tex.; Jean Schenck, Lawndale, N. C.; George Clyde Skindred, Indianapolis, Ind.; Walter Orlando Withers, Atlanta, Ga.; Fred Hendrix Young, Atlanta, Ga.

Following the final exercises Friday evening, the week was filled with the most profitable series of closing exercises.

Each of the front with real bathtubs filled with heated spring water. The cadets were given some days in front and then go off duty for a like time, thus get a chance to bathe at least once in the week—often if the spirit moves while they are resting.

The appliances for comfort and safety that are in the front line trenches are practically duplicated in parallel with the front line trenches, and third line trenches in which the man can get further back the progress of the French.

Every shelter, both in and out of the trenches, equipped with a double exit, so that in case one is caught by the enemy he can get out by the rear exit, which are entrances of barred wire.

Every trench has numerous exits so that the cutting off of one will not be fatal to any large number of soldiers.

MIDSHIPMEN ARE CHARGED WITH CHEATING IN EXAMS

Court of Inquiry Ordered Involving Seven Students at Naval Academy

WASHINGTON, June 5.—After a conference with President Wilson today, Secretary Daniels appointed a court of inquiry to investigate specific charges that seven midshipmen at the naval academy had secured advance information on examinations. The court will make a sweeping inquiry, however, into reports that other midshipmen and possibly some instructors were involved in the irregularities.

No attempt was made at the navy department tonight to minimize the gravity of the situation. Secretary Daniels' statement that the court of inquiry would make a thorough investigation.

The annual practice cruise of the midshipmen, which was to have been begun next week, has been indefinitely postponed in order that students at the academy may testify before the court of inquiry, which will be convened at Annapolis next Monday.

During his conference with Secretary Daniels, President Wilson approved recommendations that those cadets at the academy charged with irregularities in connection with recent examinations, be dismissed from the service. The secretary refused to make public the names of the three midshipmen, all of whom were lower classmen. One of them was charged with having offered a bribe to a civilian employee of the academy for advance information on an examination, and another was alleged to have gone into a professor's room to ascertain the standing they had attained in an examination.

MEMBERS OF COURT.—The court, which will investigate the situation is composed of Captain R. L. Russell, former judge advocate general of the navy; Captain A. T. Loom, Commander L. R. De Steiguer and Lieutenant Commander W. W. Wake, who will act as judge advocate.

The seven midshipmen whose cases will furnish the basis for the investigation have already been recommended for dismissal by the academy board, but Secretary Daniels, after a personal investigation of the situation, and the academy, decided that it was best to go thoroughly into all charges involving the midshipmen.

One midshipman recommended for dismissal is alleged to have secured advance copies of all examinations to be given in French and Spanish, and it is claimed that the other six received the information with the full knowledge that the academy board had previously questioned. It is further claimed that monetary information concerning the examination came into the possession of many other midshipmen an "edge" after the discovery that the examination of the examination had leaked out new examinations were prepared and held.

The cadet who is said to have received the advance information and passed on to others is understood to have claimed that it came to him anonymously through the mail.

The investigation is thought to light, however, a report that it was sent to him by an instructor and that the midshipman, after the examination, was of the phases of the situation arousing charges. The charges have previously given "tips" to cadets on examinations.

THE PRESENT and Secretary Daniels are understood to be exercised over the situation, because the cadets received the information, they kept the matter quiet. This fact is understood to have led the secretary to doubt the claims of some of the midshipmen that they did not know the information they had received was in fact the examination cases, they were to take.

The seven midshipmen under specific charges are: Ralph McK. Nelson, Jr., of New York; Chaplin Evans, of Virginia; Hamilton, of Connecticut; Leonard F. Wessels, of North Carolina.

Donald E. Duncan, of Michigan; Thomas W. Harrison, Jr., of Virginia, and James E. Moss, of Maryland. Nelson is the only straddler man among the seven directly involved. He stood third in his class and had achieved a reputation as a mathematician. His diploma was withheld at the graduation exercises yesterday.

FARMERS OF BALDWIN HEAR LIVE STOCK TALK

Hunt and Weaver Address
Meeting at Milledgeville on Daries and Beef

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., June 5.—One of the most important agricultural gatherings ever held in Baldwin county was that of today, when Hon. B. W. Hunt, of Eatonton, prominent farmer and banker, and Dr. J. M. Weaver, of the same city, head of the Eatonton Co-operative creamery, addressed the farmers and business men of Baldwin county. The object of the meeting was to give information to the farmers relative to the live stock work which is being extensively practiced here. Mr. Hunt spoke at length on his experience in financing the movement, both in loan of money to buy cattle and build fences. Dr. Weaver spoke on the actual work of dairying and raising beef cattle.

Great interest is being manifested in this work and County Farm Demonstration Agent G. E. Rice is working hard to bring the county to the forefront in this line of work and his efforts are meeting with success in all directions.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

PLANS for summer vacations are occupying the minds of many who are seeking rest from social activities and business cares. The Panama-Pacific Exposition will claim a host of visitors while others have made arrangements to spend the heated term or a part of the summer at the beautiful resorts. The Atlanta colony who have beautiful camps at Lake Takoway will occupy them by the middle of June, and with the opening of Toxaway Inn July 1, a gay summer season will be inaugurated at this favorite place. Mrs. James H. Nunnally left Monday to open her picturesque camp on Frog Island Point, and has as her guests Mrs. Robert Taylor and Mr. Winship Taylor, of Boston. They will entertain Mrs. Beulah Pilsen and the Misses Pilsen, of Washington City. "Cricket Camp" is the name of the log cabin occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Inman and family and adjoining their place is that of Mr. Brown, of Salisbury, N. C. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson and family will leave June 14, to spend the remainder of the summer at "Al-Joh-Wes-Toe," their hospitable bungalow home which commands a superb view of the lake and mountains. Their guests for the week will be Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Anna Grant and John Grant, Jr. Other pretty camps at Lake Takoway, where a delightful hospitality is dispensed, are those owned by Mrs. John Telfair Stockton, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Cochran, of Augusta; Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, of Pittsburg, and Mr. and Mrs. George Armstrong, of Savannah.

Under-Plate and Tumbler Dobbies

Not only for formal entertaining, but for the unexpected call and many occasions to which no ceremony whatever is attached, are small doilies in demand. The up-to-date hostess does not serve a glass of water unless the glass rests upon plates.

a daintily embroidered doily, and the same rule obtains when plates are placed for simple refreshments.

The design shown here is made of white linen, of fine but not necessarily expensive quality. design which looks well worked either in white or lavender. The flowers are worked in solid satin, but they are not heavily padded. Long-stemmed stitches are appropriate for the leaves, while the stems are done in outline.

Very frequently embroiderers have their nerves frazzled with the silk frays while they work with it. Not everyone knows that this condition is due to the fact the eye of the needle is too small for the number of silk threads it is used to pass.

It is just as big a mistake, however, to select a needle having too large an eye. In such a case the work takes on the appearance of having too few stitches, and holes are caused by simple refrains.

THEATRE AND GOSSIP OF THE WEEK

CASINO SKATING RINK

Elaborate Preparations Being Made for Carnival Building on Pryor Street

Announcement is made today that a new skating rink to be known as the Casino will be opened soon on Pryor street near Mitchell, a close distance from the heart of the downtown business section.

The proprietors of the prospective rink have made elaborate plans for its erection. It will be 126x156 and will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000. According to the prospective, it will be the most elaborate affair of the kind in the south.

The rink which skating has taken on the public lately as a popular pastime has been remarkably successful. Rink runs are increasing every day in Atlanta and the new rink is certain to be a center of gaiety.

Further details of the Casino and the exact date of its opening, will be announced later.

"DUBARRY" AND OTHER BIG FEATURES AT ALAMO No. 2.

Opening the week with "Dubarry," a George Kline production, in which Mrs. Leslie Carter takes the leading role, the Alamo No. 2 offers four big features and a number of other interesting dramas this week calculated to appeal to every movie fan in the city.

Anita Stewart and Earl Williams star Tuesday in "The Goddess," the popular serial by Governor Morris. Wednesday Lillian Gish and Wallace Reid in "The Sign of the Cross," a two-reel feature.

A "Man and His Mate," another masterpiece, is announced for Friday. Harry Woodruff and Gladys Brookwell take the leads. The picture is in four parts. The program for Thursday and Saturday will be announced later in The Journal.

In the title role of "Dubarry," Mrs. Carter portrays an emotional part that calls forth the highest talents of the dramatic art. The picture is a thrilling drama of the time of Louis XV and all the love, intrigue and intensity of the French court are woven into the film with master craftsmanship.

The tragic story of the favorite of the French monarch has been immortalized in fiction and history. It is an ideal plot for a movie play, and the picture was executed by the Kline company in reproducing it with a fidelity of detail and a spirit that is remarkable.

"AS YE SOW" WITH ALICE BRADY AT THE VICTORIA.

"As Ye Sow," one of the most beautiful of film-drama stars, at the Victoria this week, leading a program of pictures that are of the highest class and of the most interesting.

The picture in which she appears is "As Ye Sow," a World Film picture portraying with gripping situations and a whirlwind climax the wages of sin and the inevitable retribution that follows. The picture is in five parts and is remarkable for its superb photography.

S. Hart, the Irish wistful hero of western screen, is starred Tuesday in "The Man from Nowhere," a two-reel picture, and on the same day there are two comedies, a Pathé and a Keystone. Wednesday features Syd Chaplin.

"The Lure," starring at the Victoria Wednesday, and Tuesday Eugene Paul, a Mutual feature, "The Spell of the Poppy," a two-reel masterpiece of absorbing interest.

Other good dramas and comedies are on the Victoria program for Friday and Saturday, including a special feature, "Keystone Saturday," a Human Hound's picture.

Claire Whitney, who stars in "The Lure" Wednesday, is said to be one of the most beautiful girls of the film world. She has not had many opportunities to show her on the screen, but she is ready to show a following locally and the charm and wit of her acting is winning her more every day.

"The Lure" is a World Film picture and the picture is clear and the production is elaborate to the point of grandeur in many respects.

Photoplay magazine is telling the story of Charlie Chaplin's life. The following is an excerpt from the first of these:

"Both my father and mother were actors. My father was a well-known singer of descriptive ballads. He had a fine baritone voice and still remembered in the Russian side mother was also a well-known vaudeville singer. On the stage she was known as Lillie Harley. She too, had a fine voice and was well known as a singer of the 'character songs' which are songs in England. She and my father usually traveled with the same company, but never as far as I know, worked in the same act."

"In spite of their professional reputations and their two salaries, my earliest memories are of the poverty of the salaries could have amounted to much."

"My brother Syd was four years old when I was born. That interesting event happened at Pontiac, Michigan. My father and mother were touring the country at that time with a vaudeville company. I was born at a hotel on April 16, 1889. As soon as my mother came to travel, we returned to London, and that was my home or more or less, until I came to America."

CAMERA MAN GETS HONOR FROM CZAR FOR BRAVERY

A Pathé camera man named Eroling, in motion pictures of the execution of prisoners from the Russian side during the investment of that Austrian stronghold recently. Although badly wounded by a flying hit of shrapnel one day, he continued filming the film till he dropped before his wounds became too numerous—the possessor of a wonderful war film.

In recognition of the man's extraordinary courage, he was recommended in dispatches to Petrograd by Duke Nicholas and was decorated by the czar with the cross of the Order of St. George.

Jack Wilson, Old Favorite, to Return—Monkeys, Singers and Dancers on Vaudeville Bill

The coming of Kitty Gordon, America's highest-salaried vaudeville star, to the Forsyth has aroused Atlanta theatergoers to a high pitch of anticipation. It is predicted that it will be the most noteworthy week Atlanta has witnessed since the variety show became a meritorious institution.

Not only will it be the first appearance of Miss Gordon in Atlanta, but it will be the first time since she came into professional prominence that she has ever made an appearance in any city of the size of Atlanta.

Kitty Gordon created the role of Alma in "Alma, Where Do You Live?" She was starred in many of Broadway's most alluring musical and operatic successes. Theatrical history is alive with the attainments of the lustrous actress.

In engaging Kitty Gordon for the Forsyth, Jake Wells went to the expense of looking her at the salary she was being paid for her Broadway appearance. It was necessary to go to even great additional expense to transport Miss Gordon and her company to the south.

She is supported by a creditable company of six, all performers of recognized ability. Her vehicle is "The Return of Alma," a stunningly clever dramatic comedy from the pen of Jack Laity. It has been all the rage upon Broadway, and will improve Atlanta vaudeville patrons as no offering has in years.

The coming of Jack Wilson next week also comes enthusiastic expectation. Wilson is one of Atlanta's most widely admired favorites. He owns the distinction of having created a virtual riot at all times a picture show would be held in the Orpheum theater for more than thirty minutes at the demand of an audience that showered him with a perfect hail of applause.

Jack Wilson is one of the most original comedians in vaudeville today. He has never been known to fail to drive his audience into hysterics of laughter. "Ande's" highest class trained act will be contained in this week's bill in Gaiety's Monkeys, a play of comedy that do practically everything that humans do, except talk. There is no more renowned animal trainer on the stage than Gaiety, and his offering will be of immense interest to the children, both young and grown-up.

The Ray Dooley trio of song birds, monkeys and monologues will furnish barrels of mirth and merriment and harmony. It is not the first Atlanta appearance of this troupe of performers, and they will be welcomed by a host of admirers.

The Swan-Oatman Trio of acrobats mix thrills, suspense, excitement and comedy in fifteen minutes of whirling gymnastics, and Frank Marley, the riotous bandit, will be one of the big bills big bills. Pathé's news and comedy weeklies will continue to open and close the show.

Pie in the face. Any kick in usual location. The butter. Father's wrath. Any evening party. A lark without a guard-rail. A synch. The minister. The society mother. Awful on the bank.

PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED FOR FREE ORGANO CONCERT

Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, Atlanta's city organist, has arranged a delightful program for this afternoon's free organ concert in the auditorium-armory. The concert will begin promptly at 4 o'clock, and those attending are urged to be on time.

The following attractive program will be rendered: Concert overture in C major—Alfred Hüllig. Valse (Cradle Song)—E. Flaxington. Midsummer Caprice (Dedicated to Mr. Kraft)—Edward P. Johnston. Theme (Variations)—E. William Falkner. Aria in D—Clifford Demarest. Minuet—Theodore Salome. Cantata—R. G. Halling. Toccata in D—H. M. Klinger.

Couldn't Solve the Problem

After retiring from a business a certain man continued to maintain an office in a downtown building. He was of town almost all the time. A friend of his pointed out the incongruity, and asked him why he didn't give the office to "I would," said the other, "but I don't know what to do with the rug."

TWO DOLLARS A MINUTE PAID FARRAR IN MOVIES

She Also Gets a Royalty and a Share of All the Profits

Writing in the Photoplay Magazine of how Geraldine Farrar was brought to sign with the movies, Morris East gives the following interesting bit of information on the salary paid the star: "I told Mr. Lasky that I had a very big proposition of which I wished to talk later—meanwhile, I invited him to the Metropolitan that night, to see Miss Farrar in 'Madame Butterfly'."

He attended, and enthused. "I saw at supper in the Knickerbocker, I said suddenly: 'What would you say if I told you that I could get Miss Farrar for your photoplay?'"

"I should say you were a liar," returned Mr. Lasky, promptly and cheerfully. "Well, what would you do if I did get her?"

"You put the question wrong. What wouldn't we do?" returned Mr. Lasky. "Give me some proposition that I can take to her," I answered.

Mystery of Mary's Identity to Clear At Movie Carnival

Atlanta is going to find out whether she really was or was not Mary Fuller. You remember, don't you, how a year ago a charming young lady appeared in the city whom everybody said was Mary Fuller and entertained with all the eagerness one would naturally show when a real movie queen is present; and how, a day or so after her departure, it became noised abroad that the real Mary was somewhere on one of the Thousand Islands and the beautiful maiden who won Atlanta's heart was an impostor?

The mystery was never actually solved, but on August 17, 18 and 19 it will be, if the plans of Joe Marcelline, of the Consolidated Film and Supply company, do not go astray. August 17, 18 and 19 are the dates of the first annual Motion Picture and Theater Managers' Industrial exposition, a monster carnival which will assemble in Atlanta managers and movie stars from all sections of the country.

Mr. Marcelline declared Saturday that Universal Mary will very likely attend, along with Charlie Chaplin, Mary Pickford and other famous favorites, and he intends to make a point of introducing her to certain Atlanta young men who played beach to that other mysterious Mary a year ago.

Then—and not till then—will Atlanta really know—was it Mary or was it not?

Early Change in Cracker Roster Appears Likely

Crackers Expect to Sign Frank Hunt, Mercer Star—Sid Smith to Be Released, if He Lands Managerial Berth With Shevoret

By Innis Brown

Further changes are likely to develop in the personnel of the Crackers and in a very short time. The latest news is that another pitcher will be added and that one of the catchers now on the string will be released.

In short, it is expected that the Crackers will shortly sign up Frank Hunt, Mercer star, and that they will release Catcher Sid Smith. Whether either of these deals has been consummated, but indications are that they will be put through within a very short time.

Concerning the Hunt deal, there are two considerations which are blocking the deal. The Crackers want to give the Macon club a try out and the appearance of the deal is that a few details of the deal between the two clubs still stand in the way of consummation. It is expected that these will be understood and that the deal will be consummated.

As far as his chances to make good are concerned, all critics who have watched him in action declare that he is ready for class A ball. Mike Pinn, who is now coaching for the Crackers, saw him play in some two or three games this season, and he believed that he was ready to take his turn regularly for any club in the league right now.

Fred Robbins, who coached the Crackers during the season, says that he is a good player and who has played considerable well himself. He says that he thinks Hunt is a good player and who has played considerable well himself. He says that he thinks Hunt is a good player and who has played considerable well himself.

If Sid Smith lands his job with Shevoret, his release may mean any two or three shifts in the battle front of the Crackers. It is expected that Bill Rummel will be recalled from the outfield to play catcher. Doubtless this will be the move to make in the coming change in the catching staff.

Should Rummel be brought in, as it is expected, there are two or three different moves that may be made. Bill Manning may be recalled to the outfield, and another man signed for the third base. Or the manager may add a third catcher. It depends largely on just what the manager is getting out of the other players.

The Crackers have their eyes on a third baseman who has played in a league before. He has played before for a long time ago, and he may be brought in for a trial. It is expected that he is at present a free agent and has signified a willingness to play. He is called by the name of Benji, and has signified a willingness to play.

An amateur game of unusual interest will be that between the Southern Bell Telephone team and the Georgia Tech. and Power nine. The game will be played at Ponce de Leon park next Saturday. One of the players of the team promises to be the play-off of a postponed one. The other will be a regular schedule game.

Touchdown Wins

Dutton May Play Football Again

NEW ORLEANS, June 5.—Tom Dutton, Louisiana State all-southern center for 1912, is going to play football for the Tigers again this summer. At least this is the report following the southern college football championship game at Tulane stadium recently in which Dutton filled the line and scored 10 points scored by any one athlete.

After the game, Dutton, who is a native of Baton Rouge, and reported to have been injured by his supporters have practically convinced him as to his eligibility of being a member of the team. Following the ruling made by the S. I. A. A. delegates last fall, Dutton was ineligible to play on each department of college sports.

It is also reported that he will return to Louisiana State. The big center declares he is also ready to fight whether or not he is going in for a fourth year. He is expected to remain with the Gulf Coast Military academy.

GREAT FINANCIERS HAVE CONFIDENCE IN PRESIDENT

Business Conditions Good, Says Mr. Hawkins on Return From East

President Frank Hawkins, of the Federal National bank, who has just returned from a ten days' trip east, expresses the view that fundamental business conditions throughout the country are substantially sound and that the daily business of the country is in the hands of the nation's prominent bankers. Mr. Hawkins said, on his return from New York and Washington, that President Wilson has shown great ability in handling the delicate situation with Germany and the trouble in Mexico.

But, he shared by Republicans and Democrats alike. They express confidence in the president's ability to work out both situations without involving the country in any troublous or serious situation. In fact, I found that the general feeling among business men in the east, over our foreign relations is a more comfortable one than many of us supposed would possibly exist under present conditions.

Based upon this view, the feeling of general business conditions is one of confidence and assurance. Business conditions are regarded as fundamental good throughout the country. There is a feeling of confidence in the country and a ready availability for all legitimate business purposes. Everybody feels that over the billion dollar trade balance in our favor, and whether the European war stops or continues, there is every indication that our foreign trade will continue to build.

There is only one difference that I noted, and that is conservative financiers are not adding the launching of new enterprises or anything in the nature of speculation to the picture. This is a conservative policy that naturally grows out of prevailing conditions. But as for general business conditions the country over, there appears to be every reason to feel the most encouragement regarding them.

For the past week the Atlanta Anti-Tuberculosis association has kept open house at its new quarters at 23 East Main street, and hundreds of Atlantans have visited the house and availed themselves of the opportunity to learn more of the work of the association and by the visiting nurses association.

The new quarters consist of an entire dwelling house of eleven rooms, well fitted up with a regular kitchen, colored clinic, reception rooms, waiting room and a dental room. The visiting nurses kept the rooms bright with flowers during the "open house" week, and local merchants have made many contributions.

Miss Rosa Lowe, secretary of the association, is much gratified at the interest taken by merchants, and expects it will continue, making a bond of unity between the association and the merchants and manufacturers who may have employees at times who need the services of the anti-tuberculosis workers.

Although the past week was specially set aside as a time for public inspection, Miss Lowe states that visitors are welcome at all times to inspect the rooms and the work.

PROTECTION IS URGED AT RAILROAD CROSSING

Officials of the Georgia railroad and of the Georgia Railway & Power company are being urged by J. O. Bell, chairman of the street committee of the city, to take steps to eliminate the danger to automobiles and other vehicles of the East Lake drive crossing.

Mr. Bell is urging the carriers either to build an underpass for the drive or to place a watchman at the crossing.

GREETERS OF AMERICA WILL OPEN CONVENTION IN ATLANTA TOMORROW

Association Will Hold Annual Convention at Tybee Island in June

All preparations have been completed by Secretary E. P. Chivers, of this city, for the eleventh annual convention of the Cotton Seed Crushers' association of Georgia, which is to be held at the Hotel Tybee, Tybee Island, Ga., on June 14, 15 and 16. Men of national importance in the cotton seed oil industry will have prominent places on the program just announced.

In order to accommodate the large number of members from Atlanta, Macon, Augusta, Athens, Albany, LaGrange, Cartersville and other oil mill centers, a special train will be operated over the Central of Georgia railway from Atlanta, leaving the Terminal station on Saturday night, June 12, and arriving at Savannah on Sunday morning.

The opening session of the convention will be presided over by C. M. Rappan, manager of the Savannah convention and tourist bureau, and he will introduce Mayor James M. Dixon, of Tybee Island, and Mayor R. J. Davant of Savannah, who will deliver addresses of welcome. The responses, on behalf of the association, will be delivered by John T. Dennis, Jr., of Elberton, Ga. The features of the first day's session will be the annual address of the president, D. McCarty, of Atlanta, and the talk of Dr. R. Lee Worsham, state entomologist, who will speak on the subject, "The Boll Weevil—Its Advance Into Georgia."

On Tuesday, J. J. Culbertson, of Paris, Tex., president of the Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' association, will deliver his first address since election to office, and will choose as his subject, "The Interstate Cotton Seed Crushers' Association." R. S. Melone, of Atlanta, will speak on contracts and arbitration. T. C. Law, official chemist of the Cotton Seed Crushers' association of Georgia, will deliver an address on "Relation of the Chemist to the Cotton Seed Product Industry."

D. G. Dumas, editor of "The Oil Miller," will deliver an address at the Tuesday session, on the subject, "The Results of Co-Operation," after which the reports of the various officers and standing committees will be made.

The address of welcome will be by Mayor James M. Dixon, of Tybee Island, and he will introduce the Atlanta Hotel Men's association, Mr. Chapman, president of the Atlanta Greeters. The responses will be by President R. S. Melone, of Atlanta, and Mayor R. J. Davant, of Savannah, national head of the organization. At 12:30 tomorrow there will be a luncheon for the delegates and their wives at the Piedmont. The afternoon business session will begin at 2 o'clock.

The convention will continue in session through Tuesday and Wednesday, with business sessions at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. each day.

The local entertainment committee has prepared many social events and dinners for the gathering. At 2:30 p. m. Monday there will be a card party and reception for the ladies at the Wincoff and at 3 p. m. there will be a reception and ball at the Georgian Terrace, tendered by R. L. Grant.

On Tuesday there will be a theater matinee for the ladies, followed by an auto ride tendered by A. C. Webb. The official banquet will be on Tuesday evening at 7:30 in the ball room of the Andler hotel. During the evening three moving picture films will be shown at last year's convention will be shown.

On Wednesday there will be an auto ride around the city at 11 o'clock, followed by an old fashioned Georgia barbecue served by Will V. Zimmer at the Kimballville Farm.

Governor Stanton and Mayor Woodward are among the notables who have accepted invitations to be present at the barbecue.

All the national officers of the association will be among the delegates.

COTTON SEED CRUSHERS ARRANGE BUSY PROGRAM

SHEETS AND BEDDING FOR WAR HOSPITALS

The War Relief Clearing committee for France and the allies has issued through Dr. F. E. May, Atlanta correspondent, an appeal to Georgians for sheets, especially for use in hospital, especially for 10,000 yards of mattress material. Sheets and underwear are also much needed. All donations may be sent to 501 Grand building, Atlanta.

Brigadier A. W. Crawford, head of the Salvation Army in this division, is leaving Monday.

ENGINEERS ARRANGING MEMORIAL EXERCISES

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is arranging impressive memorial exercises for Sunday afternoon, June 13, at 2:45 o'clock.

Each year the engineers pay tribute to their departed brothers, and arrangements this year indicated hundreds of members of the brotherhood will attend the ceremony, which will be held at the Moore Memorial church, corner Latimer and Luckie streets.

Rev. G. R. Buford, pastor of the church, is assisting the engineers in preparing the program.

TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel But Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

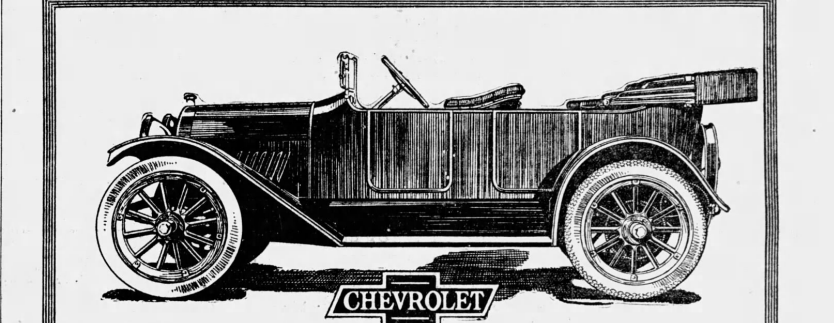

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury, or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone.

Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe, and they like its pleasant taste.

CHEVROLET

In the Interest of the Consumer

Not an Announcement But a Statement of Facts

Yes! Yes! Yes! But! We have Doubled and Redoubled and are again Redoubling our manufacturing facilities and our production. This greatly increased production enables us to purchase materials at very low prices. Factory organization, special machinery, large capital and intelligent direction all contribute to low cost. The above is not alone sufficient for radical price reductions for 1916.

What Then is the Real Reason?

Listen: For years we have devoted our time, our energies and our best thought to the manufacture and refinement of "FOURS." We know "FOURS." We believe in "FOURS." We are prepared to build "FOURS"—the safe, simple, cheap to operate, thoroughly tried and proven CHEVROLET (VALVE-IN-HEAD) "FOURS." In the interest of the consumer, we recognize the fact that the retailer must work on a narrower margin, the distributor must work on a much narrower margin, and the manufacturer must work on a very much narrower margin, enabling the consumer to secure for himself an honest and serviceable car at so near 100% value (figured dollar for dollar) that he may no longer be submitted to the violent shrinkage in value of his car when the "announcement period" arrives, which so unfortunately comes in the very middle of the natural driving and riding season.

The above frank statement and the effort to meet the conditions are the most real reason for our 1916 prices—and note, THE CARS HAVE NOT BEEN CUT A SINGLE HAIRLINE IN QUALITY.

Thinks Test of High Gear on Broadway Rigid

Even More Important Than 500-Mile Race, Says Howard Marmon—Because It's Made on Touring Cars and Proves Powerful Reserve

"We consider the remarkable showing of the Marmon '41' in the high gear test up and down Broadway, New York, as of more importance than the winning of the 500-mile race," said Mr. Howard Marmon, of the Nordyke & Marmon company, Indianapolis.

Mr. Marmon designed the famous "Wash," which won the first 500-mile speed event, and is also the designer of the Marmon "41," which made the records on Broadway.

"It means more to automobile owners and drivers to have their cars tested than it does to judge from the performance of special racing cars."

"We take standard stock touring cars, put in the number of persons the car is expected to hold, and then make tests over streets and roads where the motorist will use the car."

"Of course we made it a much harder test over actual conditions by driving with the gears locked in high, but we simply wanted to show what the car will do, that is, the amount of reserve that it has."

"Years ago the engineer was largely content to serve as a laborer for making tests of designs and material, and he generally constructed special cars to try out new ideas, but we feel that this has been accomplished, and there is no special benefit to the motorist from these tests of specially built cars."

"We are gratified to see the record of economy made by the car in New York City driving, with a large number of stops and starts, and with a wasteful of gasoline, and the record of 2.5 miles to one gallon, over a five-stop, running in high gear, is very remarkable indeed."

"After this test on Broadway was completed the same car was taken out to the Ocean Parkway boulevard, where the average was 16.5 miles to one gallon of gasoline. This latter run was made under extremely adverse conditions, as a strong wind was blowing and a heavy mist had formed."

"The test also verified once more the correctness of our new method of cone clutch construction and proved beyond doubt that the cone clutch used on the '41' will withstand any load that it is put to in actual service."

More Partners For Goodyear

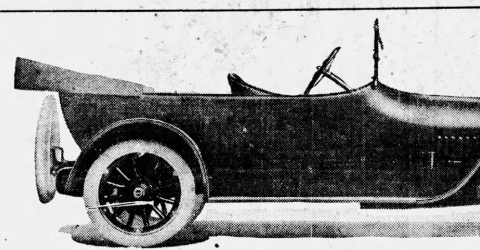

Stockholders of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company voted unanimously Tuesday to increase the common capital stock of the company from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000. The resolution was passed after a long discussion of the company's financial condition and the need for additional capital.

The resolution provided for setting aside $15,000,000 of the company's assets to be used for the purpose of increasing the common capital stock. The resolution was passed by a vote of 100 to 0.

LINCOLN HIGHWAY "MOVIE" PARTY MAINTAIN SCHEDULE

The moving picture party of Lincoln Highway officials traveling from coast to coast is now in Ohio, having filmed places of interest along the route. The party is expected to reach the Atlantic coast by the end of the month.

TRIUMPHANT BUICK "SIX"

Triumph motor cars are seeking another triumph, and such a triumph as it is! The flood of recognition which is coming to a very essential point of construction in Buick cars for years is the general shift of motor car manufacturers toward the value-in-the-head type of motor.

Buick engineers have long since convinced themselves that this is the most efficient type of motor, and years ago the '12' was adopted unreservedly by the makers of these popular cars.

Now, however, the triumph of the Buick Six is being achieved, and the triumph is being achieved by the triumph of the Buick Six.

Here comes the connection with the success of Buick principles in the construction of Buick cars. More than two years ago, Buick began experiments with six cylinder motors. After two years of the hardest test ever offered any motor vehicle now before the buying public of this country, the Buick Six, with value in the head motor stood up in such a manner as to prove beyond the slightest shadow of doubt that it was a crowning success.

As a result, Buick made and marketed "Sixes." Since that time these cars have met with their original type of motor, the most startling development in the motor car industry, has been the general influx of value-in-the-head type of motor construction. There is the latest triumph of Buick, and all must agree that it is a magnificent indication of Buick's success.

Following the announcement that Buick will build nothing but "Sixes," and marking the great success which these cars have met with their original type of motor, the most startling development in the motor car industry, has been the general influx of value-in-the-head type of motor construction.

Eastern Tennis

NEW YORK, June 5.—The four eastern tennis players who will compete for the Panama-Pacific exhibition tennis tournament at San Francisco were named today by the United States National Lawn Tennis association. The winners are J. H. Philadelphia, will captain the team; Watson M. Vashburn, New York; George M. Church, Eugene, N. J.; and Dean Church and Mathew form the pair for the doubles.

The players will get their first preparatory matches together at the National Clay Court championship at Pittsburgh beginning June 26.

In one of the greatest harness meets held in this country. More than $100,000 was offered in purses and prizes. A list of entries are a number of Grand Circuit races. The meeting will continue until June 10.

TARGET AND TRAP

Among the many things that sometimes handicap a trapshooter are the wind, the weather, the ground, etc. These features may seem but little things, but it is well to give them careful attention, for one is often apt to discover some little peculiarity which will amply repay them in an important target or move.

For instance, if the targets are thrown up hill—that is, if the back ground over which the target is thrown has an upward slope, it will be wise to take into consideration the fact that the targets will be just the reverse of what they are in a really good wind. Where the ground slopes down from the trap, the targets will seem to be thrown higher than ordinary. Thus under over shooting, whichever the case may be, will be the result and will save you chaffin when the final score is tallied.

Sometimes the wind will affect the flight of the target. Shooting under the lee of the club house may protect you from the blast and you may fail to realize how strong the wind is out at the target.

The very shape of a clay pigeon causes its flight to be readily affected by a strong wind. This may not be noticeable to any extent with the first shot, but as the target becomes more and more difficult to hit, the wind will be felt more and more.

For actual demonstration of what a tire will do nothing can equal the experience of users. This is the real test of a tire, its best selling argument. The Empire Rubber and Tire company, of Trenton, N. J., has never made any effort to collect testimonials from its users, yet is constantly in receipt of voluntary letters telling of exceptional tire mileage given by the tough red Empire tires.

The ability of this tire to resist heat and consequent friction, a result of the absence of tire sulphur in the process of curing, the toughness of the tread, and its comparative immunity from road shocks, are shown by the figures in records of 5,000 and 6,000 miles. These distances are not uncommon.

But frequently Empire Red tires do even better. Results 10,000, 15,000 and even 19,000 miles are reported. These totals are important, not because it is possible that every tire can be guaranteed to give such extraordinary mileage, but because they are a proof that the Empire Red has all the factors of a good tire.

Picking at random from the mass of letters, it will be seen that the Empire Red gives its mileage in all sections of the country and under all conditions of travel. Over mountain roads, on the rough, unpaved highways of sparsely settled country districts, on the asphalt streets of the cities, there is demonstration of the toughness of Empire product. Let the automobile be big or little, heavy or light, the result is an Empire Red tire.

For example, William Boye, York, N. Y., writes that a 375 Empire Red tire, which he had run 8,000 miles of service on the rear of a big piece of machinery, was still in good condition when ruined by a destructive blast of steam.

In ordering three more tires of the same type, Mr. Boye said it was expensive to get half a mile of tire, 1,500 to 2,000 miles out of other makes. He is an Ohio farmer. To the same Mr. W. B. Yoder, of Pittsburg, in a letter, presented astonishing figures to the effect that he had run 10,000 miles on a 375 Empire Red tire, which he had run 1,500 to 2,000 miles out of other makes. He is an Ohio farmer.

Mr. Yoder says that one of these tires traveled 18,955 miles, before it was incapacitated for further service. The tire during all this mileage was only removed from the rim four times to treat small punctures. The mate to this tire is still running with more than 20,000 miles to its credit.

Chicago, June 5.—Sporting extras with box scores are among the crying needs of the men in the European trenches, and the need is becoming a description of the Johnson-Willard fight according to a generous circulation of a letter received from George H. Rayner, former shortstop and third baseman of the Boston team in the Inter-Mountain Baseball league. Rayner is in the firing line near Ypres in the first battalion of the Canadian expeditionary force.

"I'll up a few sporting extras and send them along," he wrote a friend. "If I get picked off before they come the other boys will be glad to get them. At it again, and I don't even know who or why."

"So old Jack Johnson finally met a big man and got ticked. I was glad to hear of it, although I have not seen an account of it yet."

Locals to Enter Big Gun Shoot

Much interest has been aroused among local trap shooters over the annual state shoot to be held at the Savannah Yacht club June 8 and 9. Several members of the Gate City Gun club, which range near Brookwood is the scene of close matches will be in the state championship title, at present held by James Burrell of Augusta.

Only amateur shooters will be eligible for money prizes, though professionals may shoot for targets, between 2,000 and 25,000 of which will be thrown during the course of the two days shoot.

The first day's shooting, which will be at the 1000 yds. range, will be at 10 o'clock. The second day's shooting, which will be at the 1000 yds. range, will be at 10 o'clock. The third day's shooting, which will be at the 1000 yds. range, will be at 10 o'clock.

When a man has all the requirements, if his health is all right, his heart will be light. While he's riding on Diamond Tires."

—Mr. Squegee

A man is a good deal like a tire. His greatness depends on the crowd he is in.

The really great man—the leader—literally has to meet all co-workers in the contest for public approval. Any tire is the best tire in a crowd of inferiors.

But nowadays a tire has to be extraordinary if it is to make and hold a record for superior service and mileage economy.

It is the extraordinary quality of Diamond tires that has given them a record-making record. Send for our book of letters from dealers who sold Diamond Tires in 1914.

It tells how more than 99 out of every 100 of the more than half a million Diamond tires sold last year gave maximum service at minimum mileage cost. It is yours for the asking.

ON THE FRINGE WITH THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

Among the travelers of the A. M. Robinson company, who sent in a noteworthy amount of business during the past week were R. L. Smith, L. R. Robinson, Frank Singleton and M. L. Crawford.

C. C. Phillips, of the Capital City Tobacco company, was in at headquarters last week for his usual monthly visit. He is looking somewhat better after a recovery from a few days' illness.

Among the visitors to the Brower Candy company last week were C. H. Brower of Savannah, L. V. Brower of Montgomery Ala., W. C. Petty of Savannah, and C. E. Freeman, also of Savannah. They were here attending the convention of cotton oil men at the auditorium. Brower mentioned are brothers of W. A. Brower, of the Brower Candy company.

W. C. Tennent, who travels for the Hirschberg company, returned to Atlanta from the road on May 29 suffering from an attack of malaria fever. He was at home all last week, but hopes to be back on the road on Monday. He wants all his trade friends to know that he is well, even if it is delayed a few days.

W. E. Rumph, of Culloden, Ga., was a visitor last Friday at the All Star Manufacturing company. Mr. Rumph formerly traveled for this company and is always a welcome visitor.

Frank Cery, of John Silver & Co., last week took the first big order of the season for fall goods. Mr. Cery's order amounted to nearly $15,000.

Among the travelers of Lamar & Rankin Drug company who were at headquarters on May 29, were J. Bradford, who has headquarters at Elberton, and P. G. Stanley and J. F. Fincher, who travel out of Gainesville.

North Carolina, who is the lead at the J. K. Orr Shoe company last week, "Parker" Barnes, traveler in Western North Carolina, was in together with G. Davis, who travels the territory around Greensboro, N. C., close second.

Chas. Ivey, of the A. M. Robinson company, was in last week for the first time since he went out with his fall samples. He brought back a big package of orders.

Among the visitors and patrons of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. during the past week were Dr. R. A. Mallory, "Parker" G. H. D. Moore, Dr. J. G. L. Leitch, Norcross, Ga.; Dr. J. E. Christian, Dalton, Ga.; Dr. L. H. Ingram, Fayetteville, Ga.

Among the travelers of the Ragan-Maine company who were in last week on Saturday were W. Scott, in from South Georgia, where he has been for some time, and S. G. Jones, who came in from North Georgia with good orders from Ham and Zach. Both Mr. Jones and Mr. Daniels had a noteworthy business both in fall and fill-in goods.

E. L. Adams, of the E. L. Adams company, together with his family, spent the week end with his parents in Jackson, Ga.

The Latin-American Film company of New York City, who are the leading standing order for Mr. George S. Pennell, of Pennell Bros. Co., for films, returned to Atlanta last week. This means that these cartridges will be distributed in all throughout the retail clubs in the United States.

L. A. Woodfin, traveler for the Kentucky-Little-Redwine company, was in for a few days last week. He reports that crops are good in his territory, and notwithstanding the fact that there has been a great deal of rain, the people are hard at work, and the outlook for the fall is encouraging.

J. H. McKinnon, who is the new Mississippi traveler for the A. M. Robinson company, left his Thursday morning after being at headquarters for several days getting ready his fall samples.

L. A. Harrow, South Carolina traveler, and W. A. Kay, Birmingham traveler, for the A. M. Robinson company, after being at headquarters all last week, will return to their respective territories on Monday.

F. H. Allen, of the office force of the A. M. Robinson company, on last Monday returned to his desk after a seven week illness. All his friends were cheering him at the office on his return after so long an absence. Mr. Allen is one of the most popular members of the Robinson force.

W. H. Hester, traveler for the Pittsburg Steel company, is the father of a fine boy, W. H., Jr. Mr. Hester is receiving the congratulations of all the fine line circle.

Miss Elizabeth Parham, the efficient house saleswoman of the Brower Candy company, has been making some large sales recently to visiting dealers.

"All our forces are out working for business," said H. B. Collingsworth, of the Graveling-Stauding company, "and they are sending in frequent orders. We are having a big run on tennis shoes. In fact our sales of tennis shoes have been equal to those of last season."

P. S. Brownlee, of the E. L. Adams company, together with his family, attended the U. C. T. picnic at Lester's mill on last Saturday.

LEWIS TELLS STORY OF SUCCESSFUL MERCHANTS

Relates Principles and Methods by Which Big Success Was Gained

BY E. P. LEWIS.

Would you believe it possible to open a business on a capital of $100 in a building only 24x40 feet, purchasing $100 worth of merchandise and investing the remaining $100 in fixtures? In the next 12 years, time increase the stock from $100 to $75,000, which includes the usual lines in a department store?

This is the success of two very eminent business men from whom I get my information direct and whose identity I shall keep my readers in doubt until June 29, at which time I will give name of firm as well as the location, which is on the same site as opened twenty years ago.

This is the success of two very eminent business men from whom I get my information direct and whose identity I shall keep my readers in doubt until June 29, at which time I will give name of firm as well as the location, which is on the same site as opened twenty years ago.

These men began business on a cash basis, and have adhered to that system up to the present time. They also guarantee the purchase to give satisfaction or the money is promptly refunded.

It has never been their aim to try to make a fortune, but to make a living for themselves and their families. They have tried to give as much of their business as possible to the manufacturers and jobbers of Atlanta, as they are one among the "few" who realize that a dollar at home is worth two, no visit.

On Sunday, June 2, I will give the names of these two widely known and highly esteemed gentlemen.

Montag Bros. Open Camera and Auto Tire Departments

Montag Brothers have recently added a new department to their business, namely a camera and photographic supply department and an automobile tire department.

J. C. Matthews, advertising manager, and Imperial automobile tire, and in fact all kinds of leather work of any kind. The firm's harness enjoys a reputation not only in Atlanta but throughout the entire territory.

The firm is also becoming rapidly known as a place where any job no matter how unusual, how large, or how small, in leather or canvas, can be done and done satisfactorily. The firm does many unusual kinds of work, such as for instance a repairing football, tennis racket, the unusual leather apparatus used by physicians, and in fact the hundred and one unusual things that cannot be had in the ordinary course of business can be secured at the Montag Brothers.

"Notwithstanding the hard times of the past year, Montag Brothers has been practically normal," said Mr. Goldin, in commenting upon the business of the firm. "In fact we find that our business is constantly increasing, and this is the reason we must seek another location. We look forward to the future as containing bright prospects for business, regardless of the trouble in foreign countries. We already have the reputation of being able to make anything in leather and canvas that can be wanted no matter how unusual. This fact we wish to become more widely known than ever because it will be an undoubted advantage to Atlanta to have a place where an unusual job of this kind can be done without having to send it away to distant cities. We are prepared to handle this kind of work not only for Atlanta but for all the southeast."

"We are selling a great many bows, bow strings and wash ties, and also Palm Beach ties," said W. O. Steele, of the All Star Manufacturing company, "and present the rash season of summer ties is on. We continue to have good hat orders and general business is good."

"We are receiving splendid results from our Palm Beach catalogue," said Charles Perry, of the J. K. Orr shoe company. "Since the catalogue has been distributed to the trade, we have been receiving orders right along for our Palm Beach lines. Only this week we had several orders from Texas, in fact, the orders have been very general from all the territory we cover."

"We have noticed during the present season a very active demand for pickles," said Donald Mickle, of the H. L. Slinger company. "This demand has been especially for bulk sweet pickles. Along also with the general pickle demand have been many calls for all pickles in all sizes."

D. GOLDIN WILL MOVE TO LARGER QUARTERS

Increasing Business Demands Bigger Building—"Any Job in Leather"

The move is occasioned by the growth of the company's business demanding larger and handroom quarters. In connection with the move comes the announcement that the firm's upholstery department will be enlarged for upholstery work of any kind. The firm's leather work of any kind, in fact, the firm's harness enjoys a reputation not only in Atlanta but throughout the entire territory.

ROSENFELD MEN HERE FOR FALL SAMPLES

Report Crops Good and Feeling Better With Reference to Trade Outlook

M. J. Kent, S. M. Rosenfeld and J. M. Frankel, travelers for the Rosenfeld company were at headquarters last week getting ready their fall samples preparatory to going back on the road. Mr. Kent, who has heretofore traveled the western territory with headquarters at New Orleans will remain in Atlanta for most of the time hereafter, making his old territory as occasion requires.

Mr. Kent declares that business is improving everywhere in his territory and that by fall trade will undoubtedly be normal. He states that crop conditions are good.

"Everybody is feeling better," said S. M. Rosenfeld, who came in from a successful trip in Virginia and North Carolina. "The attitude of business everywhere toward the future is better. Everywhere there is greater confidence in the administration's handling of the difficult problems with foreign nations. This confidence in this country will go through with honor and still with people. People refuse to be scared any longer and are going about their business in a conservative but progressive manner."

Mr. Frankel, who is known as the society leader of the Rosenfeld company, reports that in his Kentucky territory business is much better shape than it has been for several years, that both tobacco and wheat in that section brought good prices and there have been large crops. "People in my territory seem to have forgotten the war and are looking after their interests and trying to steer them safely through the rocky road ahead. Business has been also very flourishing indeed in my South Indian territory."

Other Rosenfeld travelers will be here this week for their fall lines.

SPRING TRADE SHOWED INCREASE AT KISER'S

"The months of March, April and May have all shown a good increase over the corresponding months of last year," said C. J. Sullivan, of the M. C. Kiser company. "Our spring business has been very gratifying indeed. All our travelers are now out with their fall lines, and on Friday we heard from all of them with a nice lot of orders. The orders were for both fall and fill-in goods."

Sure-Enough Sagacity On the Merchant's Part

There isn't a man of us who doesn't like to have other folks think us smart.

It is just plain human nature.

If we keep a store, we like for the drummers to respect our judgment and show that they know we know what's what.

We like for our customers to appreciate our taste and skill in the selection of our stocks.

We like to be put on this Board or that Committee or the other Directorate because it—well, because we ought to be put on it!

We're all that way.

Just in the matter of plain, everyday trading, there's ONE pre-eminent way in which every merchant in this section of the country—particularly in Georgia and the contiguous states—can show himself very, very wise.

He can demonstrate that he knows what real sagacity is.

He can start a personal campaign for HOME GOODS.

First place, he can put them in his store cheaper than he can goods that have long hauls.

He can buy lighter and oftener because he's close to supply.

He can get in quick touch with the factory at any time. Repeats, re-orders, corrections, fill-ins, inquiries—any kind of special communication with the people who MAKE THE GOODS, can be had without loss of time.

All of this cuts down the cost of doing business.

That's the Main Thing for the Merchant who wants to trap success. That is real Sagacity.

And then besides:

There's another big feature in Home Goods for the Home Merchant. It's this:

There has been a real awakening of public sentiment in favor of Home Goods.

The propaganda has penetrated into surprisingly remote places. There's been a lot of talk about the duty of USING HOME MANUFACTURED GOODS.

It has begun to sink in. It's going to sink lots deeper, too.

Now then:

The Merchant with His Eyes Open is going to CASH IN on this sentiment in every possible way.

He has the Manufacturers working for him.

We print our advertisements everywhere. The people are learning them by heart. They know our names and our goods' names.

WHY NOT TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS SELF-STARTING PUBLICITY AND HAVE THESE GOODS READY FOR YOUR TRADE?

You then put yourself in line as a co-operator in the popular public work of building up our own section and state.

Your customers will get this. You may not think it especially appeals to them—BUT IT DOES.

Try it, Merchants. It is your opportunity to DISPLAY THE REAL ARTICLE OF SAGACITY.

Colored Cotton Is Being Raised by A Southern Farmer

A. W. Brabham, of Olar, S. C., Has Produced Several Shades, and Hopes to Develop Red, Black, Green, Blue, Yellow, Brown and Gray.

A. W. BRABHAM, of Olar, S. C., is attempting to raise colored cotton. He has sent the Journal specimens of brown, yellow, and green, and is at work on four other hues. He is sure that black, red, and gray cotton can be produced, and he heard recently of the development of blue cotton.

Experiments are being made in Mexico with black cotton, and Mr. Brabham is in correspondence with an expert there who hopes to produce a fibre of solid black, instead of white. Owing to the unsettled condition of affairs in Mexico, however, no details of the effort, on Mexican soil, to grow black cotton, have been obtained.

A short while ago Mr. Brabham heard through C. H. Clark, of Boston, Mass., that blue cotton has been produced; and he has since added this hue to the six others he is attempting to perfect.

He thinks that the color of cotton can be controlled and diversified by combinations, as the color and other characteristics of stock are controlled.

"The making of these different shades of cotton," he says, "is no guess work, no hypothesis, but a plain simple fact. Look how soon Jacob changed the color of the entire herd of Laban's cows. Look how soon a hog dealer can change the color of his hogs; a poultry raiser change the color of his chickens; or a kennel-keeper the color of his dogs.

"To the incredulous I will say: I doubt not the feasibility of colored cottons; some of them exist now, enough to produce many valuable variations, and because you never heard of a thing, don't put it down a lie.

Following is an article he has written for The Journal's Sunday Magazine section on his experiments with colored cottons:

How I Know We Can Raise Colored Cotton.

By A. W. Brabham, of Olar, S. C.

YOU request me to give you as much data as possible about colored cottons. The black variety, which seems to have aroused most interest, is being developed now in Mexico. How far this effort has met with success I can't say. Owing to the disturbed condition of affairs there, I have been able to get very few details.

Recently, I heard of a new variety—blue. Before me now is a letter from C. H. Clark, president of the J. H. Bragdon Co., of Boston, who is interested in all textile products, but who doubts that any colors except brown and blue can be produced in cotton.

Mr. Clark says: "It has been commonly understood that these tinted cottons are due to the soil characteristics of the districts where they are grown."

There is no reason in such a declaration. Brown cotton will be brown wherever grown. Yellow cotton will be yellow grown in any part of the cotton-producing world. The seed and not the soil produces colored cotton.

Mr. Clark seems to doubt the existence of red cotton, but is familiar with blue cotton, a sort unknown to me and of which I intend to ask him for information. Blue cotton I will then be able to add to my colored sorts. I now have the following cottons on hand or in prospect: red, brown, blue, yellow, green and gray.

Red cotton is a native of Peru; the gray comes from India; the brown from Egypt, Peru and Hawaii; the black has been originated in Mexico; the yellow comes from China; the green has been developed here in South Carolina; of the blue I know nothing, but I hope Mr. Clark can give me light on this.

Now, adding the white cotton to the above list, makes eight sorts for a breeder to begin with, and with such a start, the various variations can only be guessed at. The making of these different shades of cotton is no guess-work, no hypothesis, but a plain, simple fact. Look how soon Jacob changed the color of the entire herd of Laban's cows. Look how soon a hog breeder can change the color of his hogs; a poultry raiser change the color of his chickens; or a kennel-keeper the color of his dogs; a pear-grower the color of his pears; and so on, in both the animal and vegetable kingdoms.

Make two different colors of the same species and a variation takes place, and the type of this variation can be made a fixed type, which can be mated with a fixed type of another variation, and so on, ad infinitum, producing countless variations.

The common belief that soil and climate have all to do with producing the color of either animal or plant is nonsense. A white man will be white either at the equator or in the polar regions. White cotton produces in the tropics as white lint as that produced in its extreme northern or southern limits of growth.

The may ask, why grow colored cotton? There were imported during April last, by the American mills over 14,000 bales of cotton grown abroad, and much of this was of the colored sort. At this rate our mills will use in a year over 600,000 bales of foreign cotton.

Beauty Of Atlanta's Child Widely Praised

ONE of the most beautiful children in America is Vezzey Rainwater, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Rainwater, of Springdale Drive. The beauty of this child has attracted attention not only in Atlanta, but also in many other cities.

A photograph, by Thurston Hatcher, printed several months ago in The Journal excited the praise of artists and photographers, and brought from many sources requests for permission to print the picture of this golden-haired little boy.

The accompanying photographs, one by Hatcher, the other two by McCarty, show with what exquisite beauty this four-year-old child is endowed.

The baby's hair has an unusually luminous golden tint, his eyes are hazel, with long, curling lashes, and his coloring is perfect.

Since the publication of his photograph several months ago, letters have been received even from distant cities in the north and the west. Artists have asked permission to paint the little fellow; photographers have wanted the privilege of picturing him

The beauty of this child has aroused comment not only in Atlanta, but in other cities. His hair, eyes and coloring are said to be almost perfect.

At the age of four years he seems to combine all the qualities of childish beauty. He is sturdy and strong and altogether boyish, and yet his hair has a rich, glowing color as though sunlight were shining on it. His eyes are large, with a wide-open, straightforward look and a dancing good humor; the lashes are curling and long. His coloring is without fault. In his healthy, firm cheeks is a pink that any painter would despair of reproducing. No child in Atlanta has excited such praise because of his beauty.

England's Problem Is Her Children, Says Dr. Broughton

If the Slaughter Goes on There Will Not Be Men Enough Left to Rehabilitate Race for Generations. America Has Its Eugenics Problem.

IF the slaughter (in Europe) goes on at the present rate, and if it must get worse before anybody gives it, there will not be men enough left to rehabilitate the race in three or four generations.

This, says Dr. Len G. Broughton, in a brief article written for the Journal, is the great problem in Europe—one that overshadows the outcome of the war.

But not only Europe, he continues, is confronted by the question of future population.

"Everyone acquainted with conditions in this country knows that we are facing a serious depletion in the ranks of the purest American blood."

To maintain a stationary population, he says, every married woman should bear four children, while the average, in America, is one and one-half children. He quotes the "Journal of Heredity" to prove that women's colleges contribute to race suicide and adds that the race of the future will suffer because of the present "inexcusable dissipation of young girls in social life."

Dr. Broughton, during his pastorate of Christ church, London, learned thoroughly conditions in England, and June 14 will lecture in Atlanta at the Tabernacle on the "European war as I have seen it, heard it, and know it."

In the following article on the war and eugenics, he states "conditions without attempting to offer a solution. 'War marriages,' which have now raised such a clamor, are not mentioned by him.

England's Problem Is Her Children

By Dr. Len G. Broughton, Pastor of the First Baptist church of Knoxville, Tenn.

THE greatest problem in European affairs is not, "Who is to win in the greatest war of history?" but, "Who is to father the next generation?" Even before the war the problem was being felt because of emigration of young men to other countries, particularly the United States and Canada. Year by year the proportion of young men of marriageable age to young women of marriageable age was growing less and less. Throughout Great Britain there were about ten women to every man.

The only thing that has saved the race in Great Britain for a long while, from a eugenic point of view has been the inherent honor of motherhood, which has prevailed among women. The British wife, generally speaking, regards nothing more honorable, and nothing more to be desired than to be able to rear a family of children. If there had been the same craze among them for giddy-going and social limelight that we have in this country, the race would have long ago shown great depletion and degeneration.

Everybody acquainted with conditions in this country knows that we are facing a serious depletion in the ranks of the purest American blood. It is claimed that in order to maintain a stationary population, every married woman should bear four children. That is, the average should be up to this number. But the statistics as published show that among the best blood of the country, the average is only about 1½ children to every married woman. In the "Journal of Heredity" published at Washington, there is a revelation on this line by Prof. Roswald Johnson and Bertha J. Stutzmann, of the University of Pittsburgh, that is alarming. It contends that the women's colleges contribute largely to race suicide amongst the best element of American population.

In support of this contention the records of the Wellesley College have been analyzed, with the following results: "The writers find that twenty years after graduating, less than one half of the girls have married. These have borne only one and one-half children each. Taking all the students into account, and allowing enough time to elapse so that it is probable they will bear no more children, it is found that the Wellesley girls contribute less than one child apiece to the race—they don't even produce their own number. And the honor scholars, who, from a eugenic point of view, are assumed to be the pick of the lot, do only about a third as well as this."

But this is not the only problem in eugenics that we have to face in our country at the present time. The race of the future has to suffer because of the inexcusable dissipation of young girls in social life which wrecks their nerves and bodies before they reach motherhood.

England has been saved this folly to a great extent. Her social life has been kept circumscribed by the atmosphere of home, rigid discipline and the requirements of nature. This has been the salvation of her race. We may say what we will about the way her girls are treated, but we must never forget that we have been kept from such forms of dissipation as we have in this country has made greater mothers—but not her women. But never mind what sort of stock they have to build with, this greatest war in history is making the problem of the future man and woman a most stupendous one at the present moment. If the slaughter goes on at the present rate, and it must get worse before anybody gives it, there will not be men enough left to rehabilitate the race in three or four generations. In other words it will take Europe more than three or four generations to catch up with what she has lost in

FIGHTING THE DRUG- EVIL IN GEORGIA

Revolutionary Leaders, He Says, Are Deliberately
Starving the Peons. Only Hope for the Fear-Ridden Country Is Intervention of the United States Government.

William H. Yeandle, of Atlanta, just back from Mexico where he lived fifteen years, says:

Intervention by the United States is Mexico's only hope for peace. Statements of the degree of suffering among Mexicans are not exaggerated. The truth is, revolutionary leaders are shipping corn out of the country in the deliberate effort to starve the peons into joining the uprisings.

Ships arrive in Vera Cruz from New York bringing guns and ammunition to add to the anarchy, and leave with cargoes of corn, although Mexicans are starving by the thousands.

The most surprising part of this interview with him last week was the statement that, while a large class of Mexicans are actually dying for want of food, corn, the principal article of diet is being shipped out of the country.

The reason for this is twofold," he explained. "First, the revolutionary leaders are trying to starve the peons into joining them. Secondly, these leaders want all the money they can get to buy guns and ammunition. They are quite willing to sell corn to buy war supplies while people by the thousands are starving.

The ship on which I sailed from Vera Cruz left May 7. This ship had just arrived from New York with guns and ammunition, and it was returning laden with corn. On one voyage it brought munitions to add to the anarchy in Mexico; on leaving, it took away food, to add to the corn shortage, which is amounting to famine.

Another almost unbelievable instance that I knew to be a fact came to my notice at Tampico. An American firm had $50,000 to buy food for the people who were starving, and with this money, sent to Galveston for corn. It was found later that the very corn bought had been shipped from Tampico. The American company raised money to buy for the starving people, food that the revolutionary leaders had caused to be shipped out of Mexico, first, for the sake of money; secondly, to force the people to join them.

One condition existing today in Mexico is that of Mexicans deliberately shipping food out of the country to starve people of their own blood.

Another condition is the constant importation of arms and ammunition from the United States, by means of which the revolutionary leaders continue to wage war.

There is no hope of Mexico settling her own troubles. We must have intervention by the United States, and government for a time must continue in control. I think that nothing better could happen than for the United States to be ordered to Mexico City to take charge of affairs. He knows the Mexicans, and he could deal with them.

The Mexicans as a whole would welcome intervention by the United States. But, of course, the revolutionary leaders will fight any such step. Their business men alone. Meanwhile her women will increase in number. In the past, but that is not the only part of the great problem. We must realize that in Great Britain especially where the voluntary system of enlistment to the army is in operation, a great many of the best blood of Great Britain that is being killed or maimed for life. It is a fact that her best blood is in the army today. One can easily see how it is by observing the kind of young men that go to a great extent they are the degenerate and the physically incompetent. The really brave, strong and cultured young men of the country are being slaughtered or otherwise rendered incompetent to father the next generation. The conditions are a bit different with other European countries engaged in war. They have a compulsory system of military service and take all classes alike that are physically able, and even to a certain extent the physically feeble. This being true, those left after the war is over will be of all classes. Still the scarcity of men in proportion to women will be their problem also.

What is the remedy? Who are to marry the women of the future, and who are to be the fathers of the next generation. These are questions that stagger the wisest of men at the present time.

Europeans, in its relation to the European war, is one of the most talked-of topics now being discussed. It has been found its way to the stage. In the short play "War Brides," given recently by Nazimova and first recently at Atlanta. No theatrical event of the spring season has aroused more interest.

"War marriages" have raised a storm in England. First they were urged, almost ordered by both church and state, and wedded of this sort followed by hundreds. Since then, a protest, first almost a whisper, began to make itself heard, then grew louder and louder until now it is almost a clamor of denunciation.

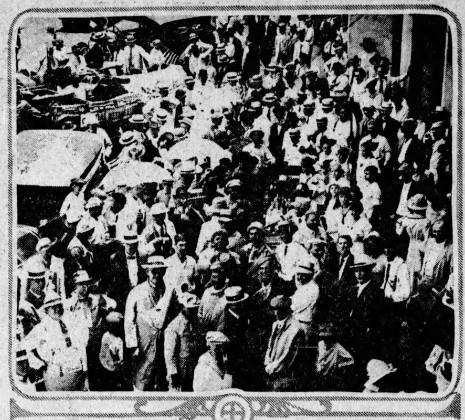

Last Sunday, Bishop Warren A. Candler, in an article in the Journal attacked "war marriages," saying: "At the outset of the war, both state and church in England advocated "war marriages" to the point just short of requiring them. Efforts were made to produce a constraining public opinion by which such marriages could be brought to pass; and the marriage ceremony was performed wholesale for nothing. The established church of England especially encouraged young women to become the brides of men just going to war in order thereby to fulfill their duty to the race. Dissenting bodies likewise took the same action. It is obvious that this defiling process degraded marriage to the level of physical necessity—the necessity in the face of war to propagate the race at an abnormal rate. The sanctity of marriage was trampled under foot, and on one thing—the necessity of American intervention.

Indian Julie, Age 107; Negro Camp-Meeting; Colquitt County Reaper

When Tifton served lemonade to the tourists.

These Are Incidents of a Five-Day Tour of South Georgia, Which Stand Out From the Whirl of Cotton and Corn and Give the Tour Its Real Character and Individuality.

By Ward Greene.

"INDIAN JULIE" at Hamilton; a negro camp-meeting near Columbus, and a Colquitt county reaper, are glimpses of the road that stand out from a hundred other impressions on the recent five-day tour to Quitman and back to Atlanta.

This trip under the auspices of the state chamber of commerce was a revelation of the richness of south Georgia. But through the whirl of cotton and corn, hog, hominy and holiday there drifts back an incident here and there, small in itself, perhaps, but with other like it forming a weave that gave the real character to the tour, made it Georgia and not some other state, stamped it with individuality and color.

Some of the whimsical happenings that will linger long after the Quitman parade is a blur on the memory and cotton acreage statistics have been wiped out by new facts and figures, follow:

Julie's Recipe for Old Age

We had ten minutes at Hamilton. "I want you to meet Indian Julie," said the editor of the local paper. Then he led the way toward one end of the courthouse square, now gay with tourists and townfolk singing songs, drinking lemonade and joking under spreading branches of great water oaks through which a Sunday afternoon sun struggled in long, lazy lines.

Julie sat on a barrel, surrounded by pretty girls. Bare footed, clad in greasy calico, her brown face a series of lines, she sucked with toothless gums on a snuff-stick. For all the world the scene was like the witch-wife and the Salem women from "Giles Cory."

Indian Julie admitted to 107 years old. She said she was "mosly Indian, a little mixed with salt-water black," born in Tennessee, but resident of Georgia "since the war fell off."

She did not know much about the Civil war, but declared she was living at the time of the Revolution and had "heard tell of Gawge Washington."

Her eyes beamed out of her sockets at the dust-driven automobiles and she shook her head and mumbled, "Devil wagons!" she called them and would have stated her soul before she set foot in one.

"Been dippin' snuff since I was big as that little gal," said Indian Julie in answer to a question. Her head bobbed toward a girl in short dresses, who giggled and hid her face.

"Dip snuff, smoke and drink all the pot liquor you want," said Indian Julie. "You'll live to be as old as I am."

Camp-Meeting Time

There's swine in a meetin' of the colored race, away down in Dixie!" It was Sunday afternoon between Columbus and Americus that the tourists saw the Georgia camp-meeting. The automobiles flashed out of a forest, buzzed in sand and jolted across a brick road.

On the left was a clearing, black with negroes. Carriages and wagons were clustered along a hitching rail, mules only for steeds, long-eared Georgia mules. The sunshine lit up the black faces, the red turbans, the white dresses. Each mouth split with a grin of welcome, there were shouts and waving of hands.

A momentary glimpse of a black-robed preacher in the doorway, the bell in the tower of the white-washed shack, two darkies in a fence corner with a bottle, and a fresco of pickaninnies along the roadside, screaming and jumping up and down.

Then, the shadows of the woods gulped up the speeding cars, and the camp meeting was gone. But every one of us had the scene photographed on his brain, a flash-light of typical Georgia to be retained forever.

Flashes on the Road

You are in Colquitt county—where, you don't know exactly—any case. The sun, a scarlet disc, slides westward in a smoky smother of dust, trailing its fiery fingers over the sleepy green fields, the quiet woods and uplands where jack-in-the-pulpits, yellow and green, stand like soldiers.

The throb of the motor is like a benediction as your car hums on through the sunshine of the late afternoon. The wind is in your eyes and the haze over the highway drifts across the warm fence and into the blue distance. The world is all at peace.

Suddenly, the car rips around a curve and the road is dead ahead through a field of uncultivated corn. Stumps stand stark in unploughed furrows, the fence is in the road and mounds. And in the middle of the desert space is a little boy.

He is standing with one bare foot deep in loam, the other crooked in the bend of the knee to promote efficient searching. The calluses over his thin shoulders are hung to blue overalls by a wisp. He leans on a hoe. Somehow he seems very small and lonely there in the unploughed field. You wonder if he has stamped the toes that is so tenderly curled up.

There is just time to wave to him before the car plunges ahead. You test see him with one hand shading his eyes against the glare of sunset, a wistful, we figure watching as if he saw the car for the first time. Woods rush in between and the sun is blotted out in thick branches.

"Pigs Is Pigs"

Two things which north Georgians noted were the turpentine belt in the lower half of the state and the hog-killing at Moultrie.

To alien eyes the level stretches of pine forest, each tree scarred white on two sides, with the sap oozing down into the little buckets, was a novel sight. So wide apart were the trees, though many, that one understood for the first time how quail hunting in their fastnesses is done. It was said that the hunter might shoot into a covey, see them on the wing for five hundred yards and spot the exact place in which they light, this despite the intervening trees.

The hog-killing at the Moultrie noted were the turpentine belt in the lower half of the state and the hog-killing at Moultrie.

Fighting The Drug-Evil In Georgia

Government Officials Find That the Wide-Spread Use of Narcotics Is Amazing. Several Thousand Victims in Atlanta. New Law Is Rigorously Enforced Against Sale of Drugs.

INVESTIGATIONS by government officers enforce the federal anti-narcotic law show that the use of opiates is prevalent to a degree no one had before imagined.

"Several thousand people in Atlanta use drugs in one form or another," said a government agent last week. "Of course I can't give more than an approximate estimate. But I believe that the number here who are addicted to opiates is almost 5,000."

"At that, conditions are much better in Atlanta than they are in the average city of this size. You might say that Atlanta, in comparison with other cities, is remarkably free from the drug evil. And, yet, we have been astonished at conditions here and everywhere."

"Nevertheless, I believe that in a year's time the drug evil will be at an end. The sale of cocaine has been stopped absolutely here and everywhere, and other drugs are being sold only in cases of necessity."

Under the direction of James H. Surber, chief revenue agent for this district, an inspection is now made regularly of the drug stores to see what opiates are sold. The new federal law prohibits the sale of any narcotic except on a physician's prescription and allows physicians will be sold, except for medicinal purposes.

"As it is now physicians can prescribe for sufferers from the drug habit narcotics only in such quantities as are necessary. The government recognized that users of opiates could not be cut off at once from drugs. The physicians are allowed to give prescriptions for narcotics so that sufferers can taper off. The business of the government agents is to see that prescriptions are not given gratuitously in violation of the law, and that drugs are not sold unlawfully."

In this work we have the assistance of the drugists and the physicians of Georgia; and, with few exceptions, no narcotics are now being sold in Georgia except to sufferers from the drug habit whose condition demanded that they should have a small quantity of opiates. The sale of cocaine has been stopped entirely. It has been proved by government physicians that users of cocaine, although they have been addicted a long time to this drug, can be denied the use of it on the instant and will suffer no ill results. Tapering off, in their case, is not necessary. For this reason, cocaine cannot be sold now except for use in surgery and dentistry.

In a year's time I believe that the new narcotic law will reduce the number of drug victims to a handful; and it certainly will prevent any new victims from falling slaves to the habit. "I believe it will reduce crime. In fact, reports from Augusta are to the effect that lawlessness there already has lessened since the law went into effect."

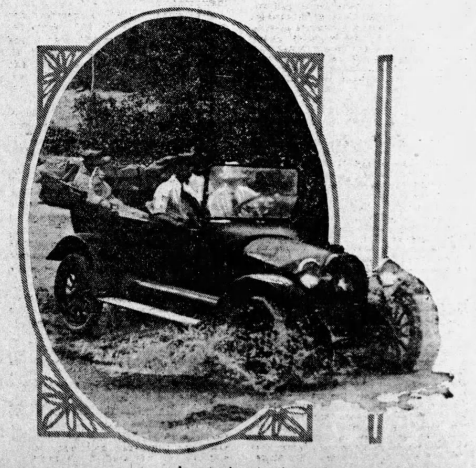

Eagle's Legs Big As a Man's Fist

COMMERCIAL, Ga.—Returning from his farm in Banks county, John Hood tells of an eagle which one of the hands recently captured after wounding it with a shotgun. The bird is a Bald Eagle, measuring seven feet and ten inches from tip to tip of the wings, with legs as large as a man's fist and talons seven inches across. The eagle has recovered from its wounds and is on exhibition.

Trains Operated Now by Telephone

WEST POINT, Ga.—All trains on the West Point route are now operated by telephone instead of telegraph, as they have been for nearly a century. Every train crew on the road is equipped with a portable phone which can be attached to the wire along the right of way wherever the train happens to be.

and spilling its life-blood into a red trough. Next two men soused him into hot water and he was shot into a machine that stripped him of hair like a pencil sharpener. Coming out on the other side the white body was plunged into ice-cold water, gutted and hustled into the next tank. Then the men dissected the various parts. Some were sacked, some were pickled and each and all were utilized in one way or another. They say the squeal is canned into a phonograph record and used for a factory whistle.

Cracker Has Kept Fresh Since Third Of July, 1863

Hickey Weighing 25 Pounds Is Killed Near Dalton, Ga.--Had Paws and Claws and a Tail Striped Like Coon's.

CLAXTON, Ga.—A cracker that has kept fresh since the Battle of Gettysburg is in the possession of T. R. Perkins, of Hartsville, Tenn., a Confederate soldier. It is two inches square, a hunk of flour and water, and was picked up in the trenches July 3, 1863, by Rounds Saunders, one of Jeb Stuart's cavalymen, who sent it to Miss Leila Roberta Perkins, of Bedford City, Va., now Mrs. A. J. Hall, of Hartsville. The cracker is probably the sole survivor of General Hardtack's forces of the Confederate army.

And a Sting in the Tail of the Hickey

A HICKEY, weighing about twenty-five pounds, was caught by some enthusiastic hunters in the mountains west of here Saturday night, after an exciting chase which culminated in a fierce scrap between aforementioned hickey and a pack of seven hounds.

Some say the animal was a wildcat; and others insist that there ain't no such animal in this section. Anyway, he had much the appearance of a cat, with genuine paws and claws. His tail was striped like unto a coon's tail.

The trail was started and the chase afforded numerous thrills. But it was when the animal was caught that the real excitement came. Old Trailer made a dash and came near getting cut to pieces for his enthusiasm. The pack finally attacked in a body, and then it was lights out for the hickey.

The animal was skinned and mounted, and has been viewed with interest by a number of Dalton people. Dead, he has a fierce, antagonistic look, and from the disappointment depicted on his countenance, it is believed he was an advocate of the Rome route for the Dixie Highway—Dalton, (Ga.) Citizen.

Tree Flowerpot Sprouts Shoots

LEXINGTON, Ga.—Last summer Mrs. Thomas W. Crawford had some sections of a blackgum tree cut to make rustic stands for flower pots on her front porch. They are blocks of the trunk of the tree about two feet in length. They have been standing on the porch since they were cut, high and dry from the ground, and yet some weeks since they began to sprout profusely and several of the sprouts that have been left to see what they would do have attained a length of eight to ten inches and are still showing a vigorous growth.

Washerwomen! Get Your Certif Now!

CHIEF OF POLICE L. M. SUMNER has requested the Rambler to give notice that on and after June 1 the ordinance known as the washerwoman's ordinance will be rigidly enforced.

All parties desiring to take in washing after the above date will be required to get a certificate from Mr. Bussey, the sanitary inspector.

In order to procure a certificate it will be necessary to show that your place is in a clean, sanitary condition.—Cordele Rambler.

Turtle Eye Shot Marksman's Test

SAVANNAH, Ga.—The day of the "bull's-eye" on the target range has gone. Gunner Harry Buchanan, of the coast guard cutter "Yamacraw," has supplanted it with the "turtle eye" shot. Tiring of the monotony of firing gun salutes at Brunswick, Gunner Buchanan spotted a turtle swimming on the surface of the water a hundred yards away, drew a bead on it and fired. When the boat's crew hauled up the turtle, it was quite dead, shot clean through the right eye. The turtle weighed 300 pounds.

100-Pound Fish From Rome River

ROME, Ga.—According to Virgil A. Stewart, famous in this section as a fisherman, the largest fish ever caught from Rome rivers was captured shortly after the close of the Civil war and was a sturgeon, weighing a hundred pounds. Other big fish caught here were a blue catfish weighing about ninety pounds and a yellow catfish which was ten pounds lighter. The heaviest trout caught tipped the scales at fifteen pounds.

Gardening Taught Georgia Children

THOMASVILLE, Ga.—Prof. Holland, of the Meigs graded schools in this county, is starting his scholars in the right direction by making them learn the elements of truck farming in a practical manner. He has had small plats laid out on the grounds and has given each child one to plant. The seed are coming up and there is rivalry among the children as to which will grow the finest yield from his "crop."—Exchange.

whose eyes are not thus affected by the sun need not wear the glasses.

While we are talking of eyes it may be just as well for me to impress upon the minds of mothers of young children the importance of consulting an oculist should there be any defective signs about their children's eyes. Many children appear stupid in school because they cannot see the blackboard, their eyesight being deficient. Of course, in this day doctors are employed to look after the physical deficiencies of school children, so that any trouble that may exist is taken in hand at once. But it is a good idea for the mothers to take their children to a competent oculist before they begin school, so that any defects of sight can be discovered and proper treatment instituted at once.

which the trunk swings, and the head is easily relaxed. Third—In this exercise the hands have the same position, but now the body is bent forward from the waist; then back; then to the right and left. Each movement should occupy four counts. Take these exercises gently, but let the movements be firm and strong. Avoid the slightest strain of the muscles. No corsets should be worn while practicing them.

The exercise about to be described is highly recommended by one who has had much experience in giving and directing exercises for the improvement of bodily symmetry. She states that it has reduced the hip two inches in a month: Lie extended on the floor, supporting one's self by one hand, while the other is placed upon the hip. While holding this position, raise the body gradually from the floor until the whole weight is supported by the hand and feet. It is comparatively easy to get the body from the floor as far as the knees, but to bring it up to the full extent just described is not easy at first. It should be tried first on one side and then on the other.

She Stammers Badly

My Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you tell me what I can do for oily hair; also for stammering? I have been stammering for three years, and I wish I could stop it.

E. M.

Use borax freely in your shampoo water, and rub the following lotion into the scalp daily, to dry the hair:

Formula for Oily Hair

Alcohol 2 ounces

Witch hazel 2 ounces

Resorcin 14 grains

Use daily, rubbing well into the scalp.

Stammering is a bad form of nervousness. One physician gives as a corrective the habit of ticking off words on the palm of one hand with the nails of the same hand, much in the way a hand is clenched when one is afraid or angry. The doctor claims that this method makes a person speak slowly and more distinctly.

Discouraged With Her Hair

My Dear Mrs. Symes.

I used to have pretty light hair, but it is turning dark and falling out. It is very fine and endy and full of dandruff. About a year ago I was troubled with vermin and I used poison to get rid of them, but I cannot get the dead nits from my hair yet. I have burnt the ends of my hair with the curling iron, so that I would like to know of a solution that will make the hair wavy, as I do not have time to put it up in curlers.

SYLENE.

Your hair is very likely too dry. You might try the following tonic and also the dandruff shampoo. The curling iron will ruin the best of hair if used too continually; but there is nothing that will make hair wavy without using curlers. It takes but a few minutes at night to wind a small portion of the hair around the head on curlers, so I should think that no objection. Do not be afraid to brush the hair freely and to massage the scalp well. The nits should come out with vigorous brushing; if not, they will have to be slipped off the hair, one by one, by some one who is patient enough to help you in your difficulty.

Quinine Hair Tonic

Sulphate of quinine 1 dram

Rosewater 8 ounces

Diluted sulphuric acid 15 minims

Rectified spirits 2 ounces

Mix, then further add: Glycerin, 14 ounces; essence of royale or essence musk, 5 or 6 minims. Agitate until solution is complete. Apply to the roots every day.

Egg Shampoo for Dandruff

Yolk of 1 egg, 1 pint of rainwater, spirits of rosemary, 1 ounce.

Beat the mixture thoroughly and use it warm. Rub it well into the scalp and rinse with several clear waters.

The Diamond from the Sky

By Roy L. McCardell

$10,000 for 1,000 Words or Less

"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"

The American Film Manufacturing Company's Picturized Romantic Novel in Chapters.

This contest is open to any man, woman, or child who is not connected directly or indirectly with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story. No literary ability is necessary to qualify as a contestant.

You are advised to see the continued photographs in the theaters where it will be shown—to read the story as it runs every week, and then send in your suggestion.

Contestants must confine their contributions for the sequel to 1,000 words or less. It is the idea that is wanted.

The most interesting situations will be pointed out from time to time in the progress of the story which will precede chapters after the opening.

By following the narrative in print and observing the action on the screen, one will be given a splendid opportunity to supply a suggestion for a sequel.

A board of three judges will decide which of the suggestions received is most acceptable. The judgment of that board will be absolute and final.

SYNOPSIS OF PICTURIZED CHAPTERS.

A little girl, considered an orphan, was found in a mine by an ancestor, who called her "the diamond from the sky." The girl is named Blair. Her mother, Miss Esther, is a widow. CHAPTER IV.

Blair breaks upon a waking world in summer. The farmer rouses for his early tasks, the poor slumber and the rich sleep in beds and soft.

At Stanley hall there is still a notice in manuscript tucked under the door and padlocked door. The window shutters are closed, the weeds rankle on the lawn, and already the proud mansion of Stanley hall seems going to ruin and decay.

A carriage drives up and stops at its portals. From it alights a gentleman of half breed, half real estate agent appearance. He assists two ladies from the carriage. One is a woman of middle age, in rich and matronly black silk, and the other is a fair young girl, modest and attractive.

And yet these two, the elder woman and the younger, are gypsies, for it is Hagar Harding and Esther, her daughter. Since that exciting night at Mrs. Randolph's ball in Richmond Hagar had had one resolve. With her son a fugitive and the diamond from the sky in her possession, as mysteriously as it had come, Hagar had centered all her hopes and all her desires on Arthur. Hagar has wealth, what need had it further? None. So she has come to Fairfax, not as a gypsy woman, but as a dowager of means, and rented the little mansion from the trustees in bankruptcy.

If the plan to rehabilitate Esther as a Stanley has failed, yet it was begun, through the death of Dr. Lee, supposedly at the hands of the fugitive young master of this very mansion, Hagar will leave it and see that Esther enters upon the position in life where she belongs.

The formalities are soon over and Hagar has installed herself and Esther in Stanley hall.

So eventful have been the last few years of her life that Esther has ceased to wonder. In the death of Dr. Lee, Esther realized she lost a friend, and one who had been a father to her. If this secret is shared by Hagar, who she supposes is her

Both Blair Stanley's mother, who was a second cousin, and Bert Randolph's mother, who was a first cousin, had invited the chagrined Mrs. Burton Randolph to Fairfax and forgotten. But Blair Stanley, being in Richmond and infatuated with his kinswoman's vicious guest, Vivian Marston, had so warmly seconded his mother's invitation that Mrs. Burton Randolph and her guest were pleased to accept it.

"My aunt is a stunner!" Bert Randolph blurted joyfully to Hagar and Esther. "Ralph here, knows what a good sort she is, and she'll be what about you, Miss Esther, won't she, Ralph?"

to ride this year!" exclaimed the good natured young man when they had all finished reading the announcement.

"The idea of them suspecting he killed Dr. Lee!" chimed in the equally generous minded Ralph Hunter. "Why, Arthur for all his wild ways had the best and kindest heart in the world; and he loved Dr. Lee like a son, even if they did have some jolly old rows about the way Arthur spent money like water and got in debt."

"But why did Arthur run away? None of us believe him guilty, and we may have our faults in Fairfax, but we are all kin and we all stand together when outsiders make trouble," asked Ralph Hunter.

"Shut up, you big ally!" cried Bert Randolph impulsively. "Can't you see you are making Miss Esther cry? Didn't you prom-

His heart beat like a drum with the wild resolution. Forcing himself to speak with a calmness he far from felt, he spoke up and said:

"If it can be spared for the day, and if you will lend me Starlight, Mr. Smith, and if you will make me a mask, Mr. Smith, and lend me a plume for my hat, I'll ride and show these Virginia boys how we do it in Kentucky!"

For it was as a young Kentuckian in hard hat Arthur had explained his plight and presence in that part of the country. Both the farmer and his wife had often discussed the stranger who had come to their ise me we wouldn't say anything about Arthur's troubles? You know Miss Esther tremulously, "let me talk about him. I know he is guilty of nothing except being a reckless boy, with no father and no money."

"O, pray, do forgive me, Miss Esther!" cried the contrite young Hunter, "but I just can't keep quiet about Arthur. He's in quiet implies we do believe those awful suspicions!"

"I thank you for that," said Esther, "but let me talk about him. I know he is guilty of nothing except being a reckless boy, with no father and no money."

Hagar spoke up for the first time. "Yes," she said huskily, "he had no mother!"

"I'll tell you something about Arthur," spoke up Bert Randolph. "It was a secret, he had only told me he was going to ride in the tournament this year and wear Blair's laurels as the best rider in Fairfax."

"He was resolved to win on Blair's horse," he was resolved to win on Blair's horse, "he was determined to win this year—it was when Miss Esther was at Dr. Lee's he told me he was resolved to win on Blair's horse."

"Well, we'll do it for him," cried young Hunter. "All the girls of Fairfax are waiting for the honor. But we'll win it for Miss Esther. One of us will block Blair Stanley and the other will win the wreath."

"Ho!" chuckled young Randolph. "Is that the chivalry of a masked knight in the tournament of Fairfax? That's a trick like Blair Stanley played, almost, I am astonished at you, Ralph!" he added with mock seriousness.

All laughed, relieved of the tension the mention of Arthur's right under the terrible suspicion had brought upon the little group, and soon after the young men rode away, declaring that Esther should be crowned at their hands, and the socially powerful female relative from Richmond should take the benefit of her exertions.

It was about at this time, on this same afternoon, that a glum faced hunchback organ grinder, with a monkey, limped into the doorway of Farmer Smith's. Poor Quabba. Well, could he realize that riches seldom bring happiness—especially when we lose them almost as quickly as they have been gained.

But the joy and glee of the little 5-year old daughter of the Smiths, Quabba, was not lessened by the loss of her father. "Kids are always glad to see us, anyway," Clarence, he said, and he playfully blithely best comedy by the appreciation of the small but select audience.

When Arthur, working on the Smith farm under the name of John Powell, was across the fields at sunset with his employer, it was a merry group they found in the doorway, Quabba and Clarence being regarded as the best of the best, and all wandering minstrels should be.

"I'm on my way to the tournament at Fairfax," Quabba exclaimed. "I've never been there, it's out of the beaten track for us show people, and for that very reason it should be a good place to pick up some good money," and Quabba produced a small handbill that he had found stuck among some barn in the locality, for the village merchants of Fairfax thought it well to advertise the tournament to the farmers for money around.

"The Fairfax tournament!" Arthur stirred with a sudden resolve. He would go! An air of mystery had always been made in the masking of the riders. He would go masked, and come. He would win the wreath and crown Esther Queen of Love and Beauty! It was a wild risk to take, a daring thing to do, but he longed to see door in the gulf, of a tramp, but they could see by his ways and manners he was no tramp. They might him by his open, manly countenance and gentle courtesy, and whatever was his secret they felt it was no dishonest one.

On Starlight, then, the farmer's blooded saddle horse, in his new cheap best clothes, and with his black silk mask and ostrich plume the farmer's wife had furnished from her Sunday Army, rode away with the best wishes of the farmer and his wife and the best wishes of the farmer and his wife.

Smith expressed it, "those stuck up Fairfax swells a taste of old Kentucky quality."

Quabba had been gone since the day before, but Arthur overtook him near Stanley hall. They waved at each other as Arthur galloped past. And then Arthur reined his horse and carried the wreath to the mansion. Did he know it, it was the spot where he had been born!

He had last seen Esther at Hagar's camp, but he was not surprised to catch the flutter of her dress at the window of the balcony that overlooked the garden at the side of Stanley hall. He had well remembered Hagar's parting words that he would take Esther to dwell at Stanley hall.

Cautious and as quiet as he was in stealing toward the house, the keen eyes of Luke Lovell, at Stanley hall that day with messages to Hagar from her gypsy folk, heard his cautious footfall, and from a hiding place saw Arthur throw a hastily open balcony to a stone, through the doorway, and he was there to meet him at the old stile at the side of Stanley hall.

And Esther was there to keep the tryst. "You must not do this!" she panted wildly, when Arthur explained his purpose. "I've never been there, it's out of the beaten track for us show people, and for that very reason it should be a good place to pick up some good money," and Quabba produced a small handbill that he had found stuck among some barn in the locality, for the village merchants of Fairfax thought it well to advertise the tournament to the farmers for money around.

And taking their seats in the gaily decorated grand stand, already Blair Stanley's mother, with her guests, Mrs. Burton of Richmond and the beautiful lady from New York whom Blair was all attention to, Vivian Marston, had taken their seats and were smiling and nodding to friends and acquaintances.

Sheriff Sam Swain was bustling about in his heavy lumbering way teasing a hunchback organ grinder, who, with a monkey, was the subject of much amusement on the tournament grounds. Sheriff Swain was jocularly pretending he would arrest both the musician and his monkey, and he was shaking the official hands at these coin gathering entertainers.

And now the master of ceremonies made the announcement the masked knights were to tilt in a general melee, with hunchback lances, at a small wreath suspended some twelve feet from the ground. Riding full speed at this object, the masked knight who could bear it off on his spear point was to be adjudged the victor, and as the best horseman of all the knights of Fairfax, would crown the maid of his choosing as "Queen of Love and Beauty," and also, by the presentation of great bouquets ready at hand, select the queen's attendant ladies of honor.

The angles blew, Sheriff Swain, as Knight Senechal, distributed the lances, and the knights lined up far down the track. The bugles blew again, and then came, twenty of them abreast, wearing the saffron of their ladies, masked and plumed and all intent upon hearing of the Queen of Love and Beauty!

Blair Stanley, on a light bay hunter, wearing the crimson sash favor of Vivian Marston, was in the lead; close behind him was a knight on a black horse, with a white star on his forehead. A strange horse to Fairfax, where every horse was a horse of blood and known. What horse was it and who was the rider? He wore a snow white scarf and sat his horse as became a Virginia gentleman—or perhaps a Kentuckian.

Blair, in the lead, seemed to block the oncoming knights behind him, but the stranger seemed to be prepared for the rush. I can't approve of his armor and his stance in the very front of Blair. The shock threw the bay hunter over and Blair fell headlong to the ground, and the stranger's spear point lifted the wreath they strove for from the wreath. As Blair fell he got a glimpse of the horseman who had unseated him, close up. And then Blair Stanley knew him. It was Arthur Stanley!

Blair Stanley knew him. It was Arthur Stanley! Blair Stanley knew him. It was Arthur Stanley! Blair Stanley knew him. It was Arthur Stanley! Blair Stanley knew him. It was Arthur Stanley!

Mistake of Midas Is Robbing Us Of Peace and Rest

Passion for Money Is Wasting the Most Precious Things of Life. Many Men Should Wear Asses' Ears of Midas. Our Peril Is Commercialism.

By Bishop Warren A. Candier.

THE myths of classic lore are the parables of paganism. In many of them are half-concealed most important truths.

The legend concerning Midas is a case in point. Midas was a mythical king of Phrygia, and one of the legends concerning him is that Bacchus granted him that whatever he touched might become gold. This mad desire when granted brought him so much inconvenience and discomfort that he begged to be relieved of the burden, and at the command of the god he washed in the waters of Pactolus, the sands of which became henceforth filled with gold.

The mistake of Midas is made by men who fix as the object of their supreme desire the getting of gain, and to the accomplishment of which they bend all energies. There are many who seek to convert all their higher powers into instruments for getting gold, thus turning the thoughts of the mind and the best feelings of the heart to selfish and material ends. They get the gold, but they lose the nobler things. They rob their hearts of peace and their bodies of rest to win profits; and thus they turn their days and nights into coin. They deny their families needful comforts and rob their homes of happiness in order to accumulate money, thus seeking to transmute domestic joys into hard metal. They will even deprive their children of education in order to make money of their innocent offspring all the advantages and opportunities of life's springtime, which once gone never returns.

Sooner or later such men must find, as did Midas, that the turning of everything into gold is a fearful mistake. The possession of property cannot compensate for the loss of better things; and when money is accumulated at the expense of mind and heart, sooner or later the fearful mistake will be perceived and remediless dissatisfaction follow. "Money answers all things" except one; it cannot answer the heart's desire for God and goodness. He who departs from God to seek gain damages his soul, and sins against his own heart and home. He is wasting the most precious things of life more wickedly than did the prodigal when he wasted his substance in riotous living. Sooner or later the impoverished soul will begin to be in want and cry out in hopeless destitution. Midas could not feed on gold, nor quench his thirst with coin.

The man who seeks gold only is perpetually asking concerning this thing and that: "What does it cost? He measures the value of all things in terms of money. But he should be reminded that money ought rather to be measured in terms of other things. He ought often to ask himself: 'What has this money cost me? have I not paid too much for it?'

Any money, however great the sum, has been won at too dear a price, if a man has darkened his mind, or hardened his heart, or damaged his family in order to get it. Money is too dear when it is obtained by loss of character. It comes too high when it is secured at the cost of dishonor to a good name.

There is another legend about Midas which should be remembered. It represents him as judging a musical contest between the gifted Apollo and the brutish Pan. The gold-loving soul of Midas had lost its power to judge music and he gave the prize to Pan. Wherefore, it is said he was cursed by having his ears grow to the size of an ass's ears. This was a very appropriate penalty. A man whose ears find more music in the jingling of coin than in the harp of Apollo ought to have his organs of hearing changed to asses' ears. Such a man is a better judge of braying than he is of music, and he ought to have ears adapted to his nature.

Many a modern Midas makes himself ridiculous when he undertakes to pass judgment on music, or painting, or literature. He has no ears adapted to the appreciation of these higher things. Midas of the ears of an ass, however, to know of the Midases of today in that he knew his earwaxers were the ears of an ass and he tried to conceal them under a Phrygian cap. Many of our modern Midases do not know the sort of ears which they are exposing to the public view.

The Phrygian gold-worshipper, however, was unable to conceal his ears beneath the flaps of his cap. His servant saw them, but dared not tell what he saw. However, he could not refrain from speaking alone of what he dared not tell to another. Hence his servant, the gold-worshipper's confidant, spoke into the excavation the statement that Midas had the ears of an ass. Thus the secret got abroad in all the land; for it is said that whenever the wind blew over the hole in the ground the words rose with the winds out of the excavation and a strange voice was heard throughout all the land saying: "Midas has the ears of an ass."

This legend shows that neither royal position nor golden possessions, however great, can conceal the senseless folly of a man whose aims are nobler than getting and holding gold. All men everywhere soon discover that Midas is an ass. Asininity is un concealable.

Whole nations, as well as individuals, may make the mistake of Midas. Commercialism may possess all the people of a country and corrupt their ideals. The peril of such an obsession peculiarly besets a nation like ours. We have no titled aristocracy; we have no hereditary official class; we have no power in the hands of a few, and therefore, the acquisition of it is an ever present temptation to many among us. Multitudes seek money in order to obtain power, and the altitude of not a few is raised by standing on their money-bags. Since

HOW HARVEY BAKER ALEXANDER "TEETHED" ON MUSIC

HARVEY BAKER ALEXANDER, age 8 years, who took to music in his babyhood.

MADAM, IT IS the truth. At the age of 11 months and 2 days, Henry Baker Alexander—Impossible? You say, IMPOSSIBLE! If you will only listen—

Just a word—

We beg you—

My dear Ma—

This is the story:

On his hands and knees, since he had learned no other way of locomotion, Harvey Baker Alexander stalked (if you will allow the word) into the room.

How else should he proceed? How else would you have crawled in your eleventh month and 21st day with every tooth you DIDN'T have hurting fit to kill?

Harvey Baker sat down on his fat legs and wondered why on earth THEY didn't come on through? Here he has been waiting round for weeks, every nerve in his head aching, and not a tooth to show.

Hang the luck, was it fair—so he put it to himself—was it fair for a fellow to suffer such twaaks and twists and floutings of circumstances?

As he wondered he chewed the shoe he had pulled off to use in the place of a pacifier disreputable in disgust.

Was this to go on forever? Was there to be no re—

He stopped.

His eye had caught the glint of a shiny, glistening something—a silvery, hard-surfaced something—an attractive, luring, hopeful something.

From the lap of a big leather chair, with the look of a kindly, motherly person done in russet, he dragged a half-cornet, half-accordion that had been dropped there. He pulled it to himself, placed it to his lips, and—

Madam, it is true—

We insist—

If you will just listen—

If we may have just a word—

Harvey Baker, with lungs that seemed made for cornets, wheezed into the mouthpiece and out of the funnel end—

We insist that from the cornet came something that was almost the "Spring Song."

He forgot the teeth he never had, he forgot the ache in his gums, he forgot his misanthropic thoughts of the world, he set himself to blow the cornet, and it's a fact that the next day two teeth were through and in a week he had a mouthful.

At the time he was five years old, he could play on the combination accordion and cornet any air he heard. He could strum airs on the piano. He would sit playing for a while and then, would stop and go over it all again.

He had never been taught, and yet, he could strum airs on the piano. He would sit playing for a while and then, would stop and go over it all again.

Air Raid on Paris Didn't Even Wake Up Mrs. Burnside

She and Julie—the Cat—Slept Through It All. Mrs. Burnside Writes of German Atrocities, and Says End of the War Isn't in Sight.

MRS. CAMERON BURNSIDE, in letters to her brother, Montrose Hill, and to her mother, Mrs. V. G. Hill, of East Lake, describes how she slept through a recent Zeppelin raid on Paris.

"What a laugh we have had," she says. "Cameron was at the hospital, and I, who have been prepared for months even keeping at the bedside a fur coat and Julie's basket (Julie is the cat), ready to descend into the cellar—well, I slept through it all."

"The firemen went at top speed through the streets of Paris, and blew trumpets to tell us be ready. But we did not wake up. We were so disappointed, and I've made the congregate promise to ring our telephone next time."

"I had been awake the night before and Julie had had earache dreadfully, so when we did get to sleep we slept soundly. Nobody was killed, but several people were wounded slightly in a factory in the outskirts where they did not put out their lights. Everyone takes it as a matter of course, we are beginning to get used to the war, and everyone is so certain of winning in the end."

In the first air raid, residents of their apartment gathered in the congregate's quarters in the cellar, and made the assault of the Zeppelins the occasion for a happy little party to show Paris wasn't afraid of Germany and her airmen.

Mrs. Burnside sends the bad news that no one talks of peace in France, and that the end of the war seems far off.

She tells of the death or the wounding of dear ones in every family of her acquaintance, and speaks of how nearly every soldier of the 22-year-old class was killed in the first fighting when the French refused to resort to trench warfare and insisted on charging the guns of the enemy.

She mentions numerous instances of atrocities ascribed to the German soldiers, and substantiates them by statements from well-known Parisians. She speaks of children being brought to Paris from the north of France whose hands had been cut off, and tells of wounded French soldiers being roasted alive.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnside, after a visit to Atlanta, sailed last year from New York for Paris, where they make their home, and landed just at the outbreak of the war. Mrs. Burnside, before her marriage, lived here, and on their several visits to Atlanta Cameron Burnside, who is one of the foremost American artists in Paris, has become well acquainted.

Because of the war and the possibility that Paris would fall, Mr. and Mrs. Burnside went to the fishing village of Concarneau, on the west coast of France. Mrs. Burnside's letters, which begin here, tell first of how factories in this village, which is the center of a fishing industry, closed; how no one was left but boys and old men; how waste began to make itself felt and the village arranged to serve a thick soup of fish and vegetables to the hungry.

The artists, she wrote, many of whom are Americans, visiting the village because of the picturesque scenes and people, added in establishing soup kitchens. A suggestion of cruelties on the part of the Germans then began to creep into her letters. She wrote that she had seen evidence of no atrocities, but that she heard daily stories of the mutilation of little children; and, soon afterward described advertisements displayed on telephone poles and in shop windows, saying that homes be provided for children from the north of France, some of whom, according to these notices, had had their hands cut off by the invaders.

She specified one instance of a baby that was left with stumps, instead of hands, and how it grew up it could not fight for France.

Later, she and Mr. Burnside returned to Paris, and she wrote: "I could tell you a thousand things. How they were roasted old people over slow fires; and how they have deliberately burned wounded French soldiers who have lain helpless in the fields. It is too awful."

She mentions a notary and his three sons who were slain. One of the boys, before he died, begged for his mother, who was brought to where he lay, but was not allowed to touch him. As he died in agony she says they have deliberately stand by helplessly and look on.

Mrs. Burnside says that these incidents are the worst she has heard of, and that in Paris, had she wished, she could have seen the bodies of the children from northern France, their hands severed at the wrists.

She early all her letters is reference to the mourning in every family for dear ones lost in battle, and she speaks of the sorrow in the beginning of the war. The French, she writes, were slow to take to trench fighting, and they also were slow to drive the Germans back, who were marching steadily then on Paris.

Soldiers of the age of twenty-two were at the front of the gallant but frightful charges that were made, day by day; and the result is nearly every Frenchman, not for army service, of the age of twenty-two, has been slain.

Cameron Burnside, she says, is nursing three nights in the week in one of the hospitals. He comes home, sleeps a few hours, then sets about his painting. Despite this, she says, he has shown no physical bad effects.

"Everything is going well," adds Mrs. Burnside, "but I do believe the war will be over in a year. When the French and Belgians get into Germany the offensive will be made, and they will hold the rest back from vengeance."

Again, she writes: "The war shows no chance of ending, and everything is getting more and more expensive."

Colored Cotton Is Raised by Southern Farmer

cotton, which can be grown here. And we need in this country every dollar sent abroad for cotton.

Moreover, colored cottons last longer and mercerize better than the white sort. The chemical dyes, or some of them, to use slang, "eat up" the fabrics.

Can we make a profit on colored cottons? If the farmers abroad do not, it there is no reason why we cannot.

In the past thirty years I have been instrumental in putting upland long cotton on a safe and paying basis. In the same time I have helped to make the field pea a factor in the commerce of the country, and if you will pardon this egotism, I was, perhaps, the first person to find out that different varieties of peas would mature and that the offspring would be more valuable than either parent plant.

Our next dream is colored cottons, and there is no reason on earth why this should be merely a dream. It should be a reality. We have fixed the types of at least two kinds, and why not others? To the incredulous I will say: Doubt not the existence of colored cottons; some of them exist now; enough to produce many valuable variations, and because you never saw or heard of a thing, don't put it down as a lie. Remember the words of the world's greatest philosopher:

"There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, Than dreamt of in your philosophy."
